U. S. Considering 12-Mile Limit Around Nation

State Department Studies National Defense Value of Territorial Waters' Zone

Other Benefits

Pittman Says Proposal Such as to Give Greater Control Over Fisheries

Washington, May 2 (AP)—The state department, it was learned today, is investigating the national defense value of establishing a 12-mile zone of territorial waters around the United States.

This extension of the present three-mile limit of coastal control was proposed to the department by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee.

Pittman said officials had advised him the proposition was under consideration but that it was complicated by international questions, since the department would prefer to take the step with other nations.

"If we allow submarines and warships within three miles of our shore during a foreign war," Pittman said, "some of our ships will be sunk. And we don't want war within three miles of our shores."

Peace-time benefits, he said, would be the United States' greater control over the Alaskan fishing banks. American interests there, he declared, are in constant conflict with those of Japanese fishermen who stretch their nets just outside the three-mile limit.

Announcing that he did not contemplate offering any legislation unless the state department requested it, Pittman said the three-mile limit might be extended either by proclamation or by treaty.

The United States set up a 12-mile zone by treaty with Great Britain during prohibition in order to make rum-runner patrols more effective. That limit was agreed upon because 12 miles was about an hour's run from shore.

The three-mile zone dates back to the time when a cannon would shoot about that distance. It long has been accepted in international law as the extent of territorial waters.

Europe Marking Time
Europe itself had the appearance today of marking time. The British home office disclosed it had given to the German embassy a list of Nazis whose residence in England was not desired. Chancellor Hitler's newspaper in Berlin said nine Germans were expelled from Britain, and declared that Germany "will not leave unanswered this shabby, and for a great humanitarian nation, unworthy treatment."

It was the third anniversary of Haile Selassie's flight from Italian conquered Addis Ababa, and today the former emperor, who now lives at Bath, England, prayed for a restoration.

Nazi officials said today that Slovakia was discussed, among other matters, during a three-day state visit of two Hungarian officials, Premier Count Paul Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Stephen Cskay. The Hungarians left Berlin today.

Governments refused to commit themselves beyond the statement that "naturally, Slovakia was talked about too," and what agreements, if any, were made to bring nominally independent Slovakia more closely into line with Hungary probably will remain secret for some time.

Hungary has coveted Slovakia, now under German protection, following the break-up last November of Czechoslovakia, and informed quarters discussed the possibility that Hungary might get more of it in return for closer cooperation with Germany.

On April 4 Hungary and Slovakia signed a protocol fixing their new frontier, with Hungary getting title to most of the Slovak territory which Hungarian troops occupied in frontier warfare March 23-25, and some additional areas for a total of about 380 square miles and a population of 45,000.

(As a sequel to the Munich conference, Hungary received 4,593 square miles, with a population of approximately 1,035,272 mostly from Slovakia. A small part of the area lay in Carpatho-Ukraine, the easternmost section of former Czechoslovakia.)

Pulitzer Awards Are Made for Year; Sherwood Repeats

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings Takes Novel Prize While Van Doren Produces Best Biography

New York, May 2 (AP)—Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, who abandoned a ten-year career in journalism in 1928 to take up fiction writing, has won the $1,000 Pulitzer prize award for the novel with her best seller, "The Yearling."

The book, a simple chronicle of a year in the life of a 12-year-old boy, is the third novel dealing with Florida "Crackers" she has written since moving 11 years ago to an orange grove at Cross Creek, Hawthorn, Fla.

Previously she had worked as a journalist in Louisville, New York and Rochester, N. Y. Her earlier novels were "South Moon Under," published in 1933—the same year she won the O. Henry short story award with "Gal Young Un"—and "Golden Apples" in 1935.

"The Yearling" Wins
In announcing the annual Pulitzer awards in literature and journalism yesterday, the trustees of Columbia University presented the $1,000 drama award for "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

It was the second time the prize went to 43-year-old Robert Emmet Sherwood, veteran American playwright, whose "Idiot's Delight," an anti-war drama, won in 1936. Plays by Eugene O'Neill have won three times and those by George S. Kaufman twice.

Other literary awards:
The $1,000 history prize—to Prof. Frank Luther Mott, director of the University of Iowa's School of Journalism, for his monumental "A History of American Magazines."

The $1,000 biography prize—to Carl Van Doren, author, teacher and literary critic, for his non-fiction best seller, "Benjamin Franklin."

The $1,000 poetry prize—to John Gould Fletcher, Arkansas imagist poet, for his "Selected Poems."

Journalism's Winners
To the Miami (Fla.) Daily News went journalism's highest accolade—the $500 Pulitzer gold medal for "the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper" during 1938. The medal was awarded for a campaign which led to the recall of most of Miami's city commissioners.

The Waterbury (Conn.) Republican-American was given honorable mention for its "exposure of municipal graft."

Other Pulitzer journalism awards:
The $500 cash award for "distinguished service as a foreign correspondent"—to Louis P. Lochner, for 11 years chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press.

Vanishes

Edward L. Schneider, 46, (above) a business lieutenant of Democratic Political Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, Mo., vanished a short time after Pendergast pleaded innocent to a federal income tax evasion indictment. Notes hinting at self-destruction were found in an automobile used by Schneider, which was found parked on a bridge.

They Won Pulitzer Awards

Among winners of this year's Pulitzer awards for distinguished work in journalism and letters and arts are (left to right): Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Berlin Bureau of the Associated Press, who was awarded $500 for "distinguished service as a foreign correspondent," Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, who won $1,000 for the most distinguished novel with "The Yearling," and Robert E. Sherwood, who won the $1,000 play prize for "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

British 'Budget' Cigarettes And Cars Being Planned

London, May 2 (AP)—British tobacco and automobile manufacturers are planning "budget packages of cigarettes" and even smaller cars to cope with increased taxes for rearmament.

At first it appeared the new cigarette tax would throw thousands of vending machines out of commission. Then manufacturers decided to charge the same price for a package of two less cigarettes.

The 25-shilling ($5.85) per horsepower tax on automobiles brought plans from at least five manufacturers for tiny cars. Some of them are said to develop about six horsepower with a top speed of 50 miles an hour to get around 55 miles to the gallon. Some of the new cars will be in production within a week.

Japanese Quake Kills 19 Persons

Hundreds Are Missing, Injured as Small Village Washes Into Ocean

Tokyo, May 2 (AP)—The first survey of earthquake stricken areas today showed 19 known dead, hundreds missing and injured, the 70 houses of the village of Aikawa reported swallowed by the sea, and more than 1,000 homes destroyed or damaged.

The terror of the quake, which centered about 300 miles north of Tokyo yesterday, was heightened by fire and flood. The shocks, said by seismologists to have been the strongest to hit northern Japan in 25 years, broke water mains and left firemen powerless to combat flames which broke out in numerous towns and villages.

The banks of a reservoir collapsed above Funakawa, port city, spilling millions of gallons of water. Seven homes were reported engulfed.

More than 30 tremors at three-minute intervals sent thousands of persons—60,000 from the city of Aikawa alone—into flight for the safety of open spaces. A gigantic submarine cave-in within less than a mile of Oga peninsula was believed to have caused the shocks.

Fragmentary reports said spectacular changes were wrought in the contours of the Akita prefecture coastline, particularly around the peninsula.

Whole sections of hills rimming the sea were said to have disappeared into the ocean, after which great waves rolled in on the new shoreline. The village of Aikawa disappeared in such fashion, police of Akita prefecture reported.

A few of the refugees pitched tents but most families merely lay down beside household articles they had salvaged. Troops were mobilized to guard the streets.

Three Receive Sentences

Moscow, May 2 (AP)—The newspaper Red Crimea reports two women and a man were sentenced by a Crimean court to three to 10 years' imprisonment because they killed a aunt to relieve overcrowding in their household. The body of the middle-aged victim was found under a bed.

Students Manage City May 8 and 9

Mark Connelly and Council Will Be Installed With Appropriate Rites

Monday and Tuesday, May 8 and 9, have been designated as Student Government Days in Kingston when the pupils of the city classes in the Kingston high school and the Myron J. Michael School will take over the government of the city.

The recently elected student mayor and other student officials will be installed with appropriate ceremonies on Monday evening in the Common Council chambers on the third floor of the city hall. Mayor Heiselman will install the student mayor, and other city officials will take part in the inauguration.

Tuesday morning the student mayor and his cabinet will take over the government of the city. Mark Connelly, a student in the Myron J. Michael School, was elected mayor following a recent whirlwind campaign featuring political rallies, posters and slogans, while Robert Friedman was elected alderman-at-large, and Janet Noble was elected city judge. All are students in the Michael School.

The members of the student Common Council were also elected, and Student Mayor Connelly is now working on his list of appointments which he plans to announce shortly.

Also passed by the senate and approved by the city council was the bill to create a board in the state education department for licensing and regulating the practice of optical dispensing, which is defined in the bill as the filling or compounding of ocular prescriptions.

Fire Near Wallkill

Loss estimated at more than $12,000 was caused by a fire that razed a two-story 9-room house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Shelby M. Harris on the Sand Hill road, six miles north of Wallkill, shortly after midnight on Saturday. It was believed a defective chimney was responsible.

Senate Approves Transit Bill Affecting New York Employees

Albany, May 2 (Special)—Senate approval was given here Monday night to the bill of Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, providing that employees of the New York city transit systems, after unification, shall be employed by the city and placed in the non-competitive class of civil service.

Any new positions, the Wicks bill states, shall be subject to civil service law and rules, however. The measure now goes to the assembly for concurrent action.

Also passed by the senate and sent to the assembly, is the Wicks measure creating a board in the state education department for licensing and regulating the practice of optical dispensing, which is defined in the bill as the filling or compounding of ocular prescriptions.

Cigarette Tax Bill Advances in Assembly

Vote Is Expected Tomorrow on Amended Form of One Cent on Each Package of 10 Cigarettes—Approval Is Given to Relief Appropriation Calling for $58,640,000

Albany, N. Y., May 2 (AP)—New York's assembly today advanced to the order of final passage a cigarette tax, chief of the Republican majority's proposals for financing the slashed state budget.

The measure, up for a vote tomorrow, when Republicans plan an amendment to levy one cent on each 10 cigarettes purchased instead of the current two cents per package of 20. The tax originally was estimated to yield $22,500,000.

The Assembly, after approval of a $58,640,000 relief appropriation, deferred until tomorrow a vote on amendment of "emergency" taxes. Republican majority leaders, predicting approval of all the revenue measures within the next few days and driving for adjournment within two weeks, also:

Slated a senate vote on three bills designed either to correct constitutional defects in the milk control law or strengthen the milk price structure.

Senate Conference
Called a senate majority conference to determine policy on a constitutional amendment authorizing a $300,000,000 slum clearance and housing fund.

Milk and housing are the chief session issues left.

Without debate, both houses last night approved the home relief appropriation recommended by Governor Lehman, from whose $415,000,000 budget Republicans slashed $30,000,000.

Both houses voted measures which allocate the $16,534,000 suggested by Lehman from the balance of a $40,000,000 bond issue voted in 1937 for institutional construction.

Appropriate $2,129,642 for the legislature, a $106,786 reduction of the governor's proposal, and $6,500,000 for the judiciary, a deletion of $458,429. Three New York city senate Democrats, Jacob J. Schwartzwald, Lazarus Joseph and Philip M. Kleinfeld, dissented.

Both houses voted and sent to Governor Lehman a bill applying the state income tax to federal employees, one of the Republican alternatives to the Governor's $66,000,000 tax program.

The majority, in discarding Lehman's suggested levies on real estate and business, also proposed a two-cents-a-package tax on cigarettes and retained the chief executive's recommended 50 per cent increase in the $1-a-gallon tax on hard liquor.

Schirick Grants Decree
Justice Harry E. Schirick has granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in the action brought by Anne Present of Kingston following Oscar Present. Under the decree the plaintiff may remarry but the defendant is forbidden to remarry without the consent of the court. The decree becomes final in three months. By order of the court the testimony is sealed.

Married at Albany on August 22, 1936, the plaintiff alleged acts of Troy in March 1939 upon which the action was brought. The plaintiff may resume her maiden name, Anne Barnett. Herman L. Katz appears for the plaintiff.

Fully Recovered

Washington, May 2 (AP)—Justice Owen J. Roberts of the Supreme Court was reported on his 64th birthday anniversary today to be fully recovered from an operation performed six weeks ago. Work on cases was his day's program.

Recommendation Refused

Albany, N. Y., May 2 (AP)—New York's Republican-controlled senate finance committee refused today to recommend that the senate confirm Governor Lehman's appointment of State Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller.

Approves Henderson

Washington, May 2 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee unanimously approved today the nomination of Leon Henderson to be a member of the securities commission succeeding William O. Douglas.

Arnold Popo, 11, Hurt in Collision With Carroll Car

Accident Occurs Near Boice Farm on Plank Road Late Monday Afternoon; Girls Give Version

Dies at 3:40 A. M.

Boy Dies at Kingston Hospital of Fractured Skull, Other Injuries

Arnold Popo, 11 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Popo, of 19 Lafayette avenue, died this morning at 3:40 o'clock from injuries which he suffered Monday afternoon when in collision with a car on the Plank road near the Boice farm.

The death is the second this week from motor vehicle accidents and the seventh fatality in the county this year.

Girls Give Version

According to statements made to Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux who with Deputy Keates Young and State Trooper Arthur Reilly made an investigation, the Popo lad was riding his bicycle along the Plank road near the Boice farm.

Three young girls, Loretta and Clara Shurter and Grace Barringer, who reside in the vicinity were walking along the road when Popo overtook them. He passed the girls and then crossed the road and returned to them and, according to their story, he rode back and forth circling the girls and then shot across the roadway just as the car operated by Mrs. Beatrice Carroll of West Hurley came along. He rode directly in the path of the car and was struck down. The accident was witnessed by the three girls.

Mrs. Carroll Gives Aid
Mrs. Carroll stopped her car and with the assistance of others started for the Kingston Hospital with the injured lad but someone had summoned the Conner ambulance and the lad was transferred to the ambulance and rushed to the hospital and given treatment by Dr. Fred Snyder. He suffered a fractured skull and severe internal injuries from which he died early this morning.

After investigating the accident and talking to the three girls Sheriff Molyneux made no charge against the driver of the car.

Later Sheriff Molyneux was told that the Popo boy had been refused permission to accompany other boys on a bicycle trip because the lads said he was too careless a rider. After being refused permission to accompany the other cyclists outside the city to look at some horses, the Popo lad apparently started out the Plank road alone.

Will Hold Inquest
Sheriff Molyneux got in touch with District Attorney C. B. Murray at Ellenville and an inquest will be held later. No autopsy was ordered.

Coroner Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson was notified following the death of the lad this morning and made an investigation.

Mrs. Carroll at the time of the accident was driving on the right of the road on her way home from Kingston.

The Popo family moved to Kingston about a year ago from New York City and Mr. Popo conducted the Kingston Mill-End Shop on North Front street.

Funeral services for the boy were held this afternoon from the funeral parlors of James V. Halloran, 44 Broadway, with burial in Montrose cemetery.

U. S. Considering 12-Mile Limit Around Nation

State Department Studies National Defense Value of Territorial Waters' Zone

Pittman Says Proposal Such as to Give Greater Control Over Fisheries

Washington, May 2 (AP)—The state department, it was learned today, is investigating the national defense value of establishing a 12-mile zone of territorial waters around the United States.

This extension of the present three-mile limit of coastal control was proposed to the department by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee.

Pittman said officials had advised him the proposition was under consideration but that it was complicated by international questions, since the department would prefer to take the step with other nations.

"If we allow submarines and warships within three miles of our shore during a foreign war," Pittman said, "some of our ships will be sunk. And we don't want war within three miles of our shores."

Police to Observe 48th Anniversary At Dinner May 18

Local Force Was Instituted May 15, 1891; Kiwanis Club and Department Will Dine Together

Kingston's police force will celebrate its 48th anniversary on May 15, and during the nearly half century it has been in existence it has seen many changes. The force was organized May 15, 1891, with Chief Stephen Wood and Sergeant Thomas J. Murray in charge. The five patrolmen appointed were James D. McIntyre, Thomas E. Cullen, George Roach, John Kieran and William Shuberg.

The bill creating the police force also specified that the constables who were serving at the time should act with the force. There were four constables at that time: Thomas Johnston, Michael J. Cahill, John Sullivan and "Jack" Barry. All have since died.

Michael J. Cahill became a sergeant of the force when he became a member of the department which office he held until he was injured while alighting from a trolley car on Broadway, and which injuries led to his resigning.

For several years the Kingston Kiwanis Club has been in the custom of holding a joint dinner with the Kingston police department. The dinner is held as near the anniversary date as possible. Following this custom the joint dinner will be held Thursday noon, May 18, in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Must Sell Themselves

Washington, May 2 (AP)—S. Clay Williams, chairman of the board of the R. J. Reynolds tobacco company and one-time NRA administrator, told businessmen today that they must "sell themselves" to the country if confidence is to be restored. Addressing the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in place of Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, who absented himself because of illness, Williams said the United States treasury was "not as stout as it was when it owed $20,000,000,000 less."

Governor Vetoes Bill

Albany, N. Y., May 2 (AP)—Governor Lehman vetoed today a bill which New York City's Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia had protested would cost the city more than $26,000 a year. The mayor said the bill would "compel the board of education to promote and increase the salaries" of approximately 45 clerks and stenographers.

Cigarette Tax Bill Advances in Assembly

Vote Is Expected Tomorrow on Amended Form of One Cent on Each Package of 10 Cigarettes—Approval Is Given to Relief Appropriation Calling for $58,640,000

Albany, N. Y., May 2 (AP)—New York's assembly today advanced to the order of final passage a cigarette tax, chief of the Republican majority's proposals for financing the slashed state budget.

The measure, up for a vote tomorrow, when Republicans plan an amendment to levy one cent on each 10 cigarettes purchased instead of the suggested two cents per package of 20. The tax originally was estimated to yield $22,500,000.

The Assembly, after approval of a $58,640,000 relief appropriation, deferred until tomorrow a vote on reenactment of "emergency" taxes. Republican majority leaders, predicting approval of all the revenue measures within the next few days and driving for adjournment within two weeks, also:

Slated a senate vote on three bills designed either to correct constitutional defects in the milk control law or strengthen the milk price structure.

Senate Conference

Called a senate majority conference to determine policy on a constitutional amendment authorizing a $500,000,000 slum clearance and housing fund.

Milk and housing are the chief session issues left. Without debate, both houses last night approved the home relief appropriation recommended by Governor Lehman, from whose $415,000,000 budget Republicans slashed $30,000,000.

Both houses voted measures which: Allocate the $16,534,000 suggested by Lehman from the balance of a $40,000,000 bond issue voted in 1937 for institutional construction.

Appropriate $129,642 for the legislature, a $106,785 reduction of the governor's proposal, and $6,500,000 for the judiciary, a deletion of $458,423. Three New York city senate Democrats, Jacob J. Schwartzwald, Lazarus Joseph and Philip M. Kleinfeld, dissented.

Both houses voted and sent to Governor Lehman a bill applying the state income tax to federal employees, one of the Republican alternatives to the Governor's $66,000,000 tax program.

The majority in discarding Lehman's suggested levies on real estate and business, also proposed a two-cents-a-package tax on cigarettes and retained the chief executive's recommended 50 per cent increase in the $1-a-gallon tax on hard liquor.

Schirick Grants Decree

Justice Harry E. Schirick has granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in the action brought by Anne Present of Kingston against Oscar Present. Under the decree the plaintiff may remarry but the defendant is forbidden except with express consent of the court. The decree becomes final in three months. By order of the court the testimony is sealed. Married at Albany on August 22, 1936, the plaintiff alleged acts of Troy in March 1939 upon which the action was brought. The plaintiff may resume her maiden name, Anne Farnell. Herman L. Katz appears for the plaintiff.

Arnold Popo, 11, Hurt in Collision With Carroll Car

Accident Occurs Near Boice Farm on Plank Road Late Monday Afternoon; Girls Give Version

Dies at 3:40 A. M.

Boy Dies at Kingston Hospital of Fractured Skull, Other Injuries

Arnold Popo, 11 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Popo, of 19 Lafayette avenue, died this morning at 3:40 o'clock from injuries which he suffered Monday afternoon when in collision with a car on the Plank road near the Boice farm.

The death is the second this week from motor vehicle accidents and the seventh fatality in the county this year.

Girls Give Version

According to statements made to Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux who with Deputy Keates Young and State Trooper Arthur Reilly made an investigation, the Popo lad was riding his bicycle along the Plank road near the Boice farm.

Three young girls, Loretta and Clara Shurter and Grace Barringer, who reside in the vicinity were walking along the road when Popo overtook them. He passed the girls and then crossed the road and returned to them, according to their story, he rode back and forth circling the girls and then shot across the roadway just as the car operated by Mrs. Beatrice Carroll of West Hurley came along. He rode directly in the path of the car and was struck down. The accident was witnessed by the three girls.

Mrs. Carroll Gives Aid
Mrs. Carroll stopped her car and with the assistance of others started for the Kingston Hospital with the injured lad but someone had summoned the Conner ambulance and the lad was transferred to the ambulance and rushed to the hospital and given treatment by Dr. Fred Snyder.

He suffered a fractured skull and severe internal injuries from which he died early this morning. After investigating the accident and talking to the three girls Sheriff Molyneux made no charge against the driver of the car.

Later Sheriff Molyneux was told that the Popo boy had been refused permission to accompany other boys on a bicycle trip because the lads said he was too careless a rider. After being refused permission to accompany the other cyclists outside the city to look at some horses, the Popo lad apparently started out the Plank road alone.

Will Hold Inquest
Sheriff Molyneux got in touch with District Attorney Cleon E. Murray at Ellenville and an inquest will be held later. No autopsy was ordered.

Coroner Howard B. Ilumiston of Kerhonkson was notified following the death of the lad this morning and made an investigation.

Mrs. Carroll at the time of the accident was driving on the right of the road on her way home from Kingston.

The Popo family moved to Kingston about a year ago from New York city and Mr. Popo conducts the Kingston Mill-End Shop on North Front street.

Funeral services for the boy were held this afternoon from the funeral parlors of James V. Haloran, 44 Broadway, with burial in Montrose cemetery.

Oscar Lampe Released

Mexico City, May 2 (AP)—Oscar Lampe, American assistant manager of the Cuernavaca Consolidated Mining Company who was kidnapped last Thursday and held for ransom, was released and allowed to return to his home in Cuernavaca. The American consul general here said Lampe reached his home at 10 o'clock last night. Lampe, seized by an armed band and reportedly threatened with death, was not hurt. The amount of the ransom was not announced here.

Dorman Addresses Savings and Loan Men of 5 Counties

Too Many Institutions Exist for Savings, Banks Deputy Tells Dinner Meeting at Gov. Clinton

Not only is there no need for additional institutions for savings, but there are too many already, was the idea presented to representatives of Savings and Loan Associations from five counties at a dinner meeting held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Monday night. The speaker was Gerald R. Dorman of Albany, a deputy superintendent of banks and the evening meeting followed an afternoon session of the Southeastern League of Savings and Loan Associations, now officially Group 5 of the New York State League, comprising the counties of Ulster, Sullivan, Orange, Rockland and Dutchess.

In introducing Mr. Dorman, the retiring president of the group, Peter Cantine of Newburgh, said that he would speak on the general topic of federal control of banking and how far it should extend to the state banking system.

Objects to Bill

Mr. Dorman left the impression that the nearer federal control of state savings institutions reached the vanishing point, the better and he voiced especial objection to a bill now under consideration in Washington the passage of which, he said, meant federal savings banks in New York state.

He said that there was too much competition in the field now, which was not good, without the Savings and Loan Associations having to meet competition from the federal government. It was noted that in addition to half a dozen or more state banking institutions of various kinds, including commercial banks, trust companies, savings banks, industrial banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions, there were at least five federal institutions.

Tells of Overbanking

There was overbanking up to 1929 and we are just beginning to get the best of the hangover, when along comes more, said Mr. Dorman, adding, leave the control of the people's savings in the hands of the state. The state was seen as fully capable of passing laws to protect savings and urged the group to stand for state control of its institutions. "Slowly but steadily the trend today is toward centralization of government," said the speaker, "and if the states lose their rights the constitution becomes just a memory."

Mr. Dorman held that instead of a dozen or more types of banking institutions there should be but three or four in the state. He

U. S. Builds Up Forest Reserve

Tree Planting in 1938 Tops 140,000,000; Michigan Leads Country.

WASHINGTON.—The national forest service made long strides last year toward building up a forest reserve by planting more than 140,000,000 trees.

The service supervised the planting of 154,268 acres of deforested land in 31 states at an average cost of $10 an acre. It estimated that timber produced by the trees would be worth $7,000, 70.

The largest number of trees in any state was 44,885,000 planted in Michigan. More than 1,000,000 trees each were planted in Wisconsin, Mississippi, Louisiana, Minnesota, Texas, Washington, Alabama, Colorado, Illinois, Arkansas, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Indiana.

Fine Trees Most Popular.
The service reported that 28 different tree species were planted. Five members of the extensive pine family—red, jack, white, longleaf and slash—represented 88 per cent of all trees planted.

Most of the young trees set out in the national forests were grown in the 28 forest service nurseries. Approximately 20 tons of coniferous tree seed and five tons of hardwood seed were used to produce the young trees.

Extension of the reforestation program, the service said, was made possible by the Civilian Conservation corps. Planting crews were made up entirely of CCC enrollees, unemployed local residents and relief labor.

Most extensive planting operations were reported in the Gulf and Lake states, where adequate natural reproduction has failed to follow the heavy cutting and repeated fires.

Michigan Forest Foremost.

The Manistee national forest on the Lake Michigan shore of the Lower Peninsula led the 74 national forests where planting was done last year with 17,984 acres. Three other national forests reporting more than 10,000 acres planted were the DeSoto in southern Mississippi, the Nicolet in northern Wisconsin, and the Upper Michigan national forest.

In Michigan the service planted 41,022 acres in longleaf and slash pine; Wisconsin, 23,042 acres of red and jack pine; Mississippi, 20,260 acres of longleaf and slash pine; Louisiana, 14,022 acres of longleaf and slash pine.

Other states included Texas, 9,852 acres in longleaf and slash pine; Minnesota, 9,030 acres in red and jack pine; Washington, 7,432 acres in Douglas fir; Idaho, 3,856 acres in ponderosa and western white pine; Colorado, 3,805 acres in ponderosa pine, and Alabama, 3,089 acres in longleaf and slash pine.

Great Pageant Will Be Staged at Kenilworth

LONDON.—Kenilworth castle, which played a large role in the lives of the early kings of England and which was later used as a romantic setting for Sir Walter Scott's novels, will review its history this summer in a great pageant. The red sandstone walls of the castle are to be used as a background for the performers, who will represent many of the chief personages of old England.

"Edward Longshanks" will attempt to storm the castle, "Queen Elizabeth" will enter the arena through the king's gate, as she did in 1575, and Shakespeare's Falstaff will show his method of raising troops for the king's army. The nine episodes of the pageant will be concluded by a scene in which the ghost of Sir Walter Scott revisits the castle and reviews the glories of its past.

Research Is Undertaken to Improve Wood Stoves

NORTHFIELD, VT.—More efficient use for wood for heating and other household purposes is expected to result from studies now being made at Norwich university bureau of industrial research.

Director Douglas E. Howes says that by using the principle of slow combustion the wood is distilled into gas and let into a chamber to be burned under the most favorable conditions possible.

He says that stoves based on this principle are now in use in Germany, Sweden and Switzerland, but that their design is not adaptable to American households.

The combustion efficiency of these stoves, Howes adds, ranges from 75 to 90 per cent against 55 per cent and much lower in ordinary stoves.

'Cinderella Town' Changes Its Name

SEAFORD, DEL.—This little southern Delaware community was dubbed the "Cinderella Town" when it first was learned that a $7,000,000 duPont company plant would be built here. But with the anticipated boom revolving around construction of the plant—residents of neighboring communities called Seaford "The Million Dollar Town," "The Magic City," and "The Hot Spot of the Peninsula."

Horse Killed by Trailer

A horse was struck and killed by a trailer on 9-W, between Milton and Highland this morning. The accident happened near the Puleo farm and the animal became wedged between the trailer wheels so that it was removed with difficulty. Sergeant Hulise and Trooper Lynn Baker were called to straighten matters out.

Home Service Your Manners Can Be Asset or Liability

Do Small Blunders Betray You?

Well-meaning Mrs. Smith! If only her knowledge of etiquette matched her good intentions.

As she joins the Jamesons for a lengthy chat, she refuses a chair, says to Mr. Jameson, "Please don't get up." But the well-bred Mr. Jameson of course will stand as long as she does. Correct to accept the chair—or pause only for a word or two. Be sure of such fine points of etiquette. When introduced, do you say "Charmed?" or "This is a pleasure?" A simple "How do you do" is correct—and gracious to add if you can, "I've heard so much about you."

And what poise it gives to know you're dressed correctly for the occasion. Good form to wear your hat at formal teas, luncheon parties, in the dining-room when you stay at a city hotel.

Leaving a party? Say good-by to your hostess—nod smilingly to those who are near, but unnecessary to speak to everyone else.

Good manners bring delightful invitations, social standing. Check up on etiquette for you and your family. Our 32-page booklet tells correct form when entertaining and visiting, at dances, the theatre, on the street, at the country club.

PACKARD COMPLETES 4 YEAR PLAN!

TODAY a Packard costs you $100 to $300 less than it did formerly.

This is not a temporary price reduction, but the beginning of a new, permanent price policy.

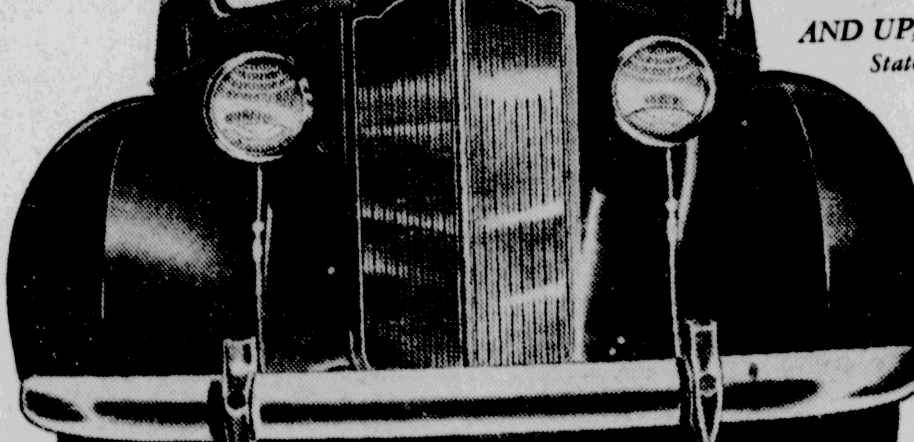

It is the fulfillment of a plan that has been four years in the making—a plan to give you, not just more car, BUT A LOT MORE CAR than the same money can buy anywhere else.

With its two great factories extensively rearranged, with a multi-million dollar equipment and expansion program completed, Packard effects important savings. And those savings are reflected in Packard's new, low prices.

And because Packard is in a rare and fortunate financial position as well—having no cost-increasing interest charges, burdened with no mortgaged overhead—Packard can make this promise for the future:

NO OTHER AUTOMOBILE SHALL OFFER YOU AS MUCH FOR YOUR MONEY AS A PACKARD

REDUCES PRICE TO $888

AND UP, delivered in Detroit, State taxes extra

THE FINEST PACKARDS EVER BUILT—The cars so greatly reduced are the same spirited, mechanically great 1939 Packards that have delighted every "man who owns one." Never in 40 years has Packard received such a torrent of enthusiastic letters from new owners.

A lot more car for your money!

The sensationally low price of $888 is for the same beautiful Packard which formerly sold for $1,000 and up! The Packard 120 and Super-8 have also been reduced as much or more.

Yet not one detail of these cars has been changed, cheapened, or left off.

Go to your nearest Packard dealer today. Take a 1939 Packard out on the road, put it through every test your ingenuity can devise, get all the welcome facts on its economy of upkeep.

Then—even if your heart was set on some other make—see if any power on earth could keep you from owning a Packard.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Prices $100 to $300 lower
Price reductions range from $100 on some models up to $300 on others! So you'll save at least $100!
4 out of 5
4 times out of 5, the car traded more than covers down payment. Hence your monthly payments are reduced still further.

Veterans' Plans For Memorial Day

Plans for Memorial Day in Kingston have been practically completed by the United Veterans Association, a newly organized association, which will carry out a program of observance.

These plans were laid before the committees at a meeting of the organization last Thursday evening when the second meeting of the season was held.

The parade committee has met with success and cooperation from the organizations and societies invited to participate. It is the intention to make this parade not only colorful but patriotic, with organizations preserving the reverence which should be held for this annual observance.

Plans for the Memorial Sunday services to be held on the evening of May 28 at the Municipal Auditorium are practically completed by the committee, which has this service in charge.

The interest shown this year in the plans for observance of Memorial Day has caused the plans to be much further advanced than in the past, and numerous organizations, which comprise the United Veterans Association are taking a real interest in the plans this year.

On April 27 the association placed before the common council a requisition for 1,106 potted plants and 1,106 American flags, 40 markers, four wreaths and six floral sprays, which will be used to decorate the graves of all veterans in the city. In conjunction with the Daughters of the Revolution approximately 2,000 graves in the city and county are cared for.

The arrangements are carried out by the following chairmen and their committees: G.A.R., James A. Krom of Tappan Camp, Sons of Union Veterans; Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Hiram F. Whitney; United Spanish War Veterans, Roswell Coles of Colonial Camp, No. 75; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Edward J. Wortman of Joyce-Schrick Post, No. 1386; World War Veterans, Roy Jacobs of Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion.

On Memorial Day, 1938, Kingston was honored to have two veterans of the War of the Rebellion, who assisted in making the observance a truly patriotic success. Comrade John S. Holliday, who was commander of Pratt Post, No. 127, G.A.R., despite his 90 years of age, ably placed the wreath on the monument on city hall green. His absence is greatly felt this year by the committee of arrangements, as Comrade Holliday answered the call of his Great Commander leaving just one veteran left who will be able to participate this year. He is Augustus Cole of Ulster Park, John W. Birmingham of the town of Rosendale will be unable to attend.

Although parade and auditorium arrangements are practically complete, owing to possible last-minute additions, they will be announced through the press at a future date. If any citizens have suggestions to make the observance more complete, they will be welcome. Get in touch with any of the veteran organizations and they will be forwarded to the proper committee.

Staatsburg Resident Killed By New Yorker's Auto

Howard Burr, 33, of Staatsburg, was killed at 12:10 yesterday morning at Rhinebeck when struck by a car driven by Frank Wynkoop of New York city. Burr was dead from a fractured skull and internal injuries when admitted to the Northern Dutchess Health Center at Rhinebeck.

Burr was the seventh death in the county from motor vehicle accidents this year. Wynkoop was not held following an investigation by Corporal Harold Quinn of the State Police who said Burr had attempted to cross the road directly in the path of the Wynkoop car.

FLEET RIDES IN FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Twenty-eight ships of the U. S. Navy's Atlantic Squadron made an impressive sight as they cruised up the Hudson river in formation, to be on hand for the opening of the New York World's Fair. This aerial photograph was taken from above the New Jersey shore (foreground). Tall spire at right of center is the Empire State building; to the left of that are midtown skyscrapers, dominated by the thin tower of the Chrysler building. The fleet attracted thousands of sightseers.

FORD TRUCK FLEET HERE TOMORROW!

Don't miss this Opportunity to See and Drive the V-8 Unit Best Suited to Your Hauling Needs

These Ford V-8 Units are part of the Great Ford Truck Fleet visiting here tomorrow. Be sure to see them!

LOOK AT THESE GREAT FORD V-8 TRUCK FEATURES:

Range of six wheelbases and 3 engine sizes 60, 85, and 95 h.p. . . 42 body and chassis types . . . Big hydraulic brakes . . . Full torque-tube drive . . . Full-floating rear axle in trucks—(¾-floating in commercial cars) . . . Heavy-duty semi-centrifugal clutch . . . Comfortable cabs . . . Large payload space . . . Ford low operating costs . . . Ford low upkeep costs, with factory exchange parts plan.

HERE'S great news for local truck operators! Twelve Ford V-8 trucks, including Cab-Over-Engines, "Regulars" and the popular "one-tonners" in a wide variety of wheelbases, engine sizes and body styles, will visit this city tomorrow!

Among them is a unit that will fit your particular requirements like a glove—with the right amount of V-8 power (either 60, 85 or 95 horsepower)—and the body type your job calls for. Behind them is a record of 21 years of truck building experience, and billions of miles of hauling and delivery service.

Your Ford dealer cordially invites you not only to inspect these great trucks, but to test them—to see for yourself how they can save you time and money on your hauling jobs.

You will find that Ford V-8 trucks do more work in less time at less cost—that they have the Ford-built stamina that keeps them on the job day after day with a minimum of maintenance cost.

Baptist Church Men's Club Variety Show Scores Hit

The Men's Club of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, presented its annual variety show last evening before a large audience. Each of the 10 acts was well received, and general comment followed the performance indicated it was one of the best in recent years.

Featured on the bill were: Tom Crosby, Jr., in violin solos, accompanied by Tom Crosby, Sr.; Jean and Roland Boss in vocal numbers; Ray Parsells, Jr., in a demonstration of magic; Ray Parsells, Sr., in comedy; Frank Oulton and his kids; Beatrice Kearney and Arthur Katz, soloists; Mrs. Frank Tinnie in a monologue and Gertrude Kolls, accompanist of the evening.

U. S. Builds Up Forest Reserve

Tree Planting in 1938 Tops 140,000,000; Michigan Leads Country.

WASHINGTON.—The national forest service made long strides last year toward building up a forest reserve by planting more than 140,000,000 trees.
The service supervised the planting of 154,268 acres of deforested land in 31 states at an average cost of $10 an acre. It estimated that timber produced by the trees would be worth $7,000,000.

The largest number of trees in any state was 44,885,000 planted in Michigan. More than 1,000,000 trees each were planted in Wisconsin, Mississippi, Louisiana, Minnesota, Texas, Washington, Alabama, Colorado, Illinois, Arkansas, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Indiana.

Pine Trees Most Popular.
The service reported that 28 different tree species were planted. Five members of the extensive pine family—red, jack, white, longleaf and slash—represented 88 per cent of all trees planted.

Most of the young trees set out in the national forests were grown in the 28 forest service nurseries. Approximately 20 tons of coniferous tree seed and five tons of hardwood seed were used to produce the young trees.

Extension of the reforestation program, the service said, was made possible by the Civilian Conservation Corps. Planting crews were made up entirely of CCC enrollees, unemployed local residents and relief labor.

Most extensive planting operations were reported in the Gulf and Lake states, where adequate natural reproduction has failed to follow the heavy cutting and repeated fires.

Michigan Forest Foremost.
The Manistee national forest on the Lake Michigan shore of the Lower Peninsula led the 74 national forests where planting was done last year with 17,984 acres. Three other national forests reporting more than 10,000 acres planted were the De Soto in southern Mississippi, the Nicolet in northern Wisconsin, and the Upper Michigan national forest.

In Michigan the service planted 41,022 acres in longleaf and slash pine; Wisconsin, 23,042 acres of red and jack pine; Mississippi, 20,260 acres of longleaf and slash pine; Louisiana, 14,022 acres of longleaf and slash pine.

Other states included Texas, 8,852 acres in longleaf and slash pine; Minnesota, 9,030 acres in red and jack pine; Washington, 7,432 acres in Douglas fir; Idaho, 3,836 acres in ponderosa and western white pine; Colorado, 3,803 acres in ponderosa pine, and Alabama, 3,089 acres in longleaf and slash pine.

Great Pageant Will Be Staged at Kenilworth

LONDON.—Kenilworth castle, which played a large role in the lives of the early kings of England and which was later used as a romantic setting for Sir Walter Scott's novels, will review its history this summer in a great pageant. The red sandstone walls of the castle are to be used as a background for the performers, who will represent many of the chief personages of old England.

"Edward Longshanks" will attempt to storm the castle, "Queen Elizabeth" will enter the arena through the king's gate, as she did in 1575, and Shakespeare's Falstaff will show his method of raising troops for the king's army. The nine episodes of the pageant will be concluded by a scene in which the ghost of Sir Walter Scott revisits the castle and reviews the glories of its past.

Research Is Undertaken to Improve Wood Stoves

NORTHFIELD, VT.—More efficient use for wood for heating and other household purposes is expected to result from studies now being made at Norwich university bureau of industrial research.

Director Douglas E. Howes says that by using the principle of slow combustion the wood is distilled into gas and let into a chamber to be burned under the most favorable conditions possible.

He says that stoves based on this principle are now in use in Germany, Sweden and Switzerland, but that their design is not adaptable to American households.

The combustion efficiency of these stoves, Howes adds, ranges from 75 to 90 per cent against 55 per cent and much lower in ordinary stoves.

'Cinderella Town' Changes Its Name

SEAFORD, DEL.—This little southern Delaware community was dubbed the "Cinderella Town" when it first was learned that a $7,000,000 duPont company plant would be built here. But with the anticipated boom revolving around construction of the plant—residents of neighboring communities called Seaford "The Million Dollar Town," "The Magic City," and "The Hot Spot of the Peninsula."

Horse Killed by Trailer

A horse was struck and killed by a trailer on 9-W, between Milton and Highland this morning. The accident happened near the Puleo farm and the animal became wedged between the trailer wheels so that it was removed with difficulty. Sergeant Hulise and Trooper Lynn Baker were called to straighten matters out.

PACKARD COMPLETES 4 YEAR PLAN!

TODAY a Packard costs you $100 to $300 less than it did formerly.

This is not a temporary price reduction, but the beginning of a new, permanent price policy.

It is the fulfillment of a plan that has been four years in the making—a plan to give you, not just more car, BUT A LOT MORE CAR than the same money can buy anywhere else.

With its two great factories extensively rearranged, with a multi-million dollar equipment and expansion program completed, Packard effects important savings. And those savings are reflected in Packard's new, low prices.

And because Packard is in a rare and fortunate financial position as well—having no cost-increasing interest charges, burdened with no mortgaged overhead—Packard can make this promise for the future:

NO OTHER AUTOMOBILE SHALL OFFER YOU AS MUCH FOR YOUR MONEY AS A PACKARD

REDUCES PRICE TO $ 888

AND UP, delivered in Detroit, State taxes extra

Prices $100 to $300 lower
Price reductions range from $100 on some models up to $300 on others! So you'll save at least $100!
4 out of 5
4 times out of 5, the car traded more than covers down payment. Hence your monthly payments are reduced still further.

THE sensationally low price of $888 is for the same beautiful Packard which formerly sold for $1,000 and up! The Packard 120 and Super-8 have also been reduced as much or more.

Yet not one detail of these cars has been changed, cheapened, or left off.

Go to your nearest Packard dealer today. Take a 1939 Packard out on the road, put it through every test your ingenuity can devise, get all the welcome facts on its economy of upkeep.

Then—even if your heart was set on some other make—see if any power on earth could keep you from owning a Packard.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

A lot more car for your money!

APPLE BLOSSOM FESTIVAL

If present weather conditions continue, orchards throughout Ulster county should be in full and vigorous bloom for the Apple Blossom Festival which will be held this coming week-end, according to local authorities. The festival which has received wide publicity is expected to attract many visitors.

When the fruit trees throughout Ulster county orchards put forth their blossoms, the hills and valleys burst forth in a riot of color. This full glory of blossom time should not only be enjoyed by visitors but by local residents as well. Most people enjoy driving through the county at blossom time in order to enjoy the beauties which nature so bountifully provides. There are many different drives which one may take to see these seasonal beauties. One of the best routes would be to follow 9W to Marlborough, turning right to the village and going through Latintown and continuing north to Milton turnpike. At this point a number of different roads may be selected. A shorter drive could be taken by following the Milton turnpike to 9-W highway. If a longer drive is desired one might turn on the Milton turnpike and follow it through Tuckers Corners, Ardona and Modena, returning to Kingston by way of New Paltz. There are many other sections of the county which will be equally interesting. Those familiar with the countryside will find a number of other drives along some of the country roads. These few suggestions may help those who may not know where best to view this beautiful spectacle of blossom time and encourage others to explore some other sections of the county.

The southern fruit belt of Ulster county is one of the richest in the country and the Apple Blossom Festival serves to attract added attention here. Besides the agricultural beauty and rich orchards, the festival has also attracted wide and favorable attention to Ulster's scenic beauty. Its three broad valleys of the Rondout, the Wallkill and the Esopus are incomparable scenically. Its historic background is also emphasized. Ulster county is known the world over as the birthplace of New York state's constitutional government. Kingston was the New York state capital in 1777 and also the site of the framing of the constitution of New York state. George Clinton of Ulster county was elected the first governor of the Empire State. Ulster county was one of the ten original counties in New York state and from it was carved Delaware, Greene and Sullivan.

Ulster county residents should be vitally concerned in the success of the Apple Blossom Festival. Every citizen who has genuine loyalty to the county should get behind the various committees of the festival and give whole-hearted support. Local people should need no exhortation to participate in all the events. In the final analysis, the benefits derived will benefit all residents of the county.

HITLER RIDES HIGH

Adolf Hitler has had his say—and a very clever speech it was, putting an intrusive President in his place and warming the hearts of the Nazis. Such performances help to wipe out the memory of indignities suffered by the German people since the war.

But a nation cannot live on oratory, no matter how satisfactorily it flays foreign critics and defies potential foes. After all the cheering and Heil-Hitlering, the people go back home to empty stomachs and headaches and muscles sore with the strain of armament work.

And it must occur to millions of Germans, who would like to be loyal to their leader, that the attempted "encirclement" of which he complains so bitterly is the natural consequence of the fierce Nazi armament race and the increasing forays against peaceful neighbors.

Anne O'Hara McCormick, brilliant American correspondent for the New York Times, wrote from Paris just before Hitler's last speech:

"If Mussolini and Hitler have not lost touch with the real needs and desperate desires of their people, if power and isolation from humanity have not blunted all sense of reality, it is inconceivable that they can respond with a categorical refusal to give the assurance the President asks. For beyond their 'no' lies certain disaster for themselves and for the world. Behind 'yes' lies the promise of a period of armistice in which international life might be organized on those bases of economic justice and readjustments without war which the League of Nations failed to build. This is no idle promise, for the New World whence the offer comes has learned something from the mistakes of the old."

But the dictators have refused such salvation.

NORWEGIANS IN THE LAKES

Inland transportation in America has mostly shifted from rivers to rails as the country developed, but the Great Lakes still have a good deal of traffic. It isn't all domestic iron ore, coal and limestone, either. As the navigation season reopens, foreign freighters appear on the Lakes, mostly Norwegian vessels, penetrating as far as 1,500 miles inland from salt water.

These craft, 260 feet long, with 42 feet beam and 18 feet draught, carry 2,500 tons of cargo, but have to drop some of it at Montreal because the upper St. Lawrence has only depth enough for 14 feet. Even so, these little ships make a living. They bring sugar from the West Indies and canned fish and general cargo from Europe. Out-bound, they take automobile parts, structural steel, grain, and so on.

How can they do it, when Great Lakes shipping men say there's no money in such traffic? They are accused of undercutting American wages. But their skippers insist that wages are about equal, in buying power at home. The profit, they explain, comes from ship design and economical operation, including the use of steam motors instead of ordinary steam engines.

To most landlubbers, watching those odd craft so far from home and salt water, there is romance in them and their sea smell. Doubtless there will be many more of them, and much larger ones, when the channel is deepened west of Montreal.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

WATER MAY PREVENT LOSS OF WEIGHT

When a diet expert outlines a reducing diet for an overweight patient he naturally allows the patient to drink water to some extent because water has little or no fuel value and does not put fat on the body. This allowing the patient to drink the ordinary amount of water in quite alright when the reducing diet is to be taken over a number of months; however, it is, in many cases, the cause of great disappointment.

Although fat is disappearing from the body while on the reducing diet as it is being used to supply part of the fuel or food supply, nevertheless the body seems to want to hold its weight for a while and takes an extra supply of water from the foods eaten, rather than let this water leave the body by the kidneys and skin. Thus, for two or three weeks, many overweight find that they have not lost as much weight as expected. In another week or ten days, however, much weight will probably be lost due to this excess water leaving the body.

This excess water has been stored in the fat tissue; every pound of fat can hold three and a half pounds of water. It can thus be seen that if the overweight is taking the 14 or the 18 day reducing diet, he or she may not lose much weight, whereas, if on a 30 to 90 day reducing diet, the loss of weight after three or four weeks will be very satisfactory.

If, in addition to continuing to drink water, the overweight continues to take his usual amount of salt, he will be even more disappointed in results because salt holds water in the tissues to the extent of 70 times its own weight.

I am reminding overweight who wish to reduce that they must keep this matter of water balance in mind because after doing without much desired food for a week or two and finding that they have lost little or no weight, they may naturally think that their overweight is not due to eating more food than they need but to some condition of one or more of their glands. If they think that eating less food is not, therefore, going to reduce their weight, they will resume a full diet again, whereas another week or two on the reducing diet would have shown that too much food was really the cause of their overweight.

Overweight and Underweight

Do you know how much you or your children should weigh? Do you know which foods are more fattening than others? Send for Dr. Barton's useful booklet entitled "Overweight and Underweight" which answers these questions and contains diet suggestions for both overweight and underweight. Send your request to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the name of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

She found a garter snake on top of her linen closet.

SHADOW OVER OUR COURTS?

Normal School News

The La Falce Brothers' band of Newburgh has been chosen for the Junior Prom, May 8. Bids for the dance are to go on sale in the Normal School next week.

Dr. Robert S. Will, head of the Education Department spoke on "Ethics of the Teaching Profession" at a district superintendent's conference in Ellenville, April 28.

The New Paltz Home Hour was inaugurated over Station WGNV at Newburgh on April 26, from 10 to 11 o'clock. The program included the Girls' Glee Club from the Central High School, directed by Mrs. Dora Warner Arnes; the Men's Glee Club of the Normal School, directed by Mr. Hoffman; a talk by B. H. Matteson, director of the Practice School; a clarinet solo by Don Hoffman, accompanied by Gertrude Simpson and concluding the program, a group of piano numbers by John Rogers of the Normal School, who is a senior from Middletown.

On May 3, the Kindergarten Primary Festival will be held in the Practice School. Miss Ruth Mack Havens, a member of the English department of the Normal School and also a kindergarten critic, and Miss Gertrude Thompson, kindergarten supervisor, are heading the plans. Primary student teachers and all those interested are invited.

Due to the proposed budget cut by the ways and means committee of the Albany assembly, New Paltz Normal School will be very much handicapped under the cut. The faculty list must either be cut or an all-around salary cut be imposed. If this budget cut is carried by the legislature, a decrease of $17,070 in the school's annual allotment has been authorized in a letter from Dr. Herman Cooper, assistant commissioner of education and certification, to Dr. Van den Berg.

Alpha Sigma Omicron is planning to hold its annual banquet May 5 at the Lorraine. Mrs. A. B. Bennett, retired head of the English department, will be master of ceremonies. Mrs. A. B. Bennett, Miss Barbara Pfaff, advisor to the group, and Miss Ruth Mack Havens will attend the banquet.

At last week's assembly, students of the Normal were delighted with the program by Donald Scott Morrison, brilliant young pianist. Introduced by Mr. Hoffman, Mr. Morrison explained that his program would be devoted to conversational music. The history of dances was traced from the 17th century up to the works of Gershwin and his "Rhapsody in Blue," each song of which was correlated with a story.

Summer sessions to be held at New Paltz this summer and at Troy will register all day July 5. Several courses are being offered and if a sizeable enrollment warrants it, additional courses desired may be added.

Fight Between Labor Groups Will Become One of Issues In 1940, With Republicans Benefiting
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 2—It begins to look as if the controversy between the C.I.O. and the A. F. of L. will become one of the principal issues in the 1940 campaign, with the Republican party probably benefiting most by the whole affair.

This trend of development may be foreseen as a consequence of the strategy being pursued now by various groups with reference to the amendment of the National Labor Relations act. The Democratic administration, which appointed the present labor board, and the C.I.O., which is supporting the board in its fight to prevent any substantial amendment of the Wagner law, are joined on one side, and the probabilities are that the A. F. of L. will be lined up in opposition unless the congress between now and 1940 accedes to the requests of the A. F. of L. for a new labor board as outlined by the national convention of the A. F. of L. earlier this year.

Over the week-end, the fight between Presidents Green and Lewis of the A. F. of L. and C.I.O., respectively, was by no means made easier to solve by the issuance of a statement by the C.I.O. charging that the A. F. of L. has been collaborating with the National Association of Manufacturers in formulating amendments. Mr. Green stoutly denied this and demanded proof and also went before the Senate committee on labor and publicly declared that neither he nor the A. F. of L. favored the amendments which Senator Burke of Nebraska has been favoring.

Mr. Green also disclosed that the C.I.O. was approaching various A. F. of L. locals with propaganda designed to make the latter believe that the A. F. of L. chiefs were deserting collective bargaining and the main advantages gained under the Wagner law. As a matter of fact, the A. F. of L. chief and his associates are vehement in their declaration that what they have in mind will enhance the value of collective bargaining and safeguard craft workers against a reduction of pay or leveling off of standards in so-called industrial unions.

The conflict of opinion as between industrial and craft unions appears no nearer settlement than it has ever been. Mr. Green seems to think that the mere fact that this difference of opinion exists today is sufficient reason for amending the act so as to take away from the labor board the discretionary power under which it has assumed to decide as between craft and industrial units in collective bargaining.

But it doesn't look as if congress is going to tackle that question by legislation, at least not until there is further clarification of the public opinion of the country. The National Association of Manufacturers and other employer organizations probably would be highly pleased to see a situation arise wherein the clamor for amendments by the small business men of the country would go unheeded this year and thus the accumulated grievances might produce a severe reaction against the whole Wagner law in 1940. By refusing to make substantial amendments at this time, the groups which believe in letting the Wagner act go untouched are playing directly into the hands of those who really are at heart unfriendly to the act and who expect to get drastic revision or repeal when the 1940 elections come and, as they believe, will give the country a Republican congress.

Much of the opposition to the present Wagner law would be removed if amendments clarifying procedure and eliminating the discretionary power of the board as to when elections might be held were to be adopted. If nothing at all is done, the A. F. of L. will make demands at the 1940 congress and the Republican national convention, and the Republican presidential nominee will probably accept in toto the A. F. of L. position, whereas the Democrats would be maneuvered into accepting the C.I.O. position. In a showdown, the A. F. of L. is much stronger politically than the C.I.O. and can control more votes.

Since the Republicans are fast winning back much of the vote in the small towns and rural areas which they lost in 1932 and 1936, the possibility of splitting the city vote again in something like normal proportions would be the best chance for the Republicans to assure themselves of victory. With the craft workers of America lined up with the Republican party, it is difficult to see how the Democrats can win the 1940 election. That is why the strategy being developed now with respect to the Wagner act hearings has much to do with the political outcome in 1940, and the mistakes being made this very month are the ones that the Democrats are going to be regretful about when the campaign of 1940 is under way and there is no chance to recover the A. F. of L. support by platform pledges or the candidate's promises.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 90—Niagara

The "Niagara" was another of those Hudson river steamboats which spent part of her days in passenger service and finally in the towing business, and eventually brought her career to a close during her term of service out of the Rondout creek.

The wooden hull of the "Niagara" was built by William and Thomas Collyer of New York City in 1844. She was powered by a vertical engine with a 65 inch cylinder and a 11 foot stroke, constructed by Hogg & Delamater of New York.

During her career as a passenger carrier, the "Niagara" was 265 feet long, breadth of beam 28 feet 6 inches, depth of hold 9 feet 3 inches, tonnage rated at 668 tons.

Built as a Hudson river dayboat, the "Niagara" made her appearance in June 1845, running on the route between Troy and New York in line with the steamboat "Troy" on the regular dayline. The following year (1846) saw the return of the "Niagara" to the Troy line, and she continued in this service until the season of 1847 brought to an end the history of the Troy dayline.

In the spring of 1848 the "Niagara" was sold to the Housatonic Railroad Company who transferred her area of service from the Hudson river to Long Island Sound—operating her between Bridgeport and New York until 1853. During these five years on the Bridgeport route, the "Niagara" was found to be too large and of too great a draft of water for this particular route, and in the year 1854 the Niagara was returned to service on the Hudson river.

Upon her return to the river for which she was built, the "Niagara" was used for towing purposes and was finally purchased by Samuel Schuyler who converted her into a towboat. The length of the "Niagara" was reduced to 251 feet, her gross tonnage was cut down to 510 and her net tonnage to 352 tons.

Samuel Schuyler then placed the Niagara on the route between Albany and New York, towing in line with the other vessels in the Schuyler fleet. She operated under the Schuyler banner until the fall of 1890 when the Schuyler line went out of existence. Then she came into the possession of the Beverwyck Towing Line, and finally, in 1891, the "Niagara" was purchased by the Cornell Steamboat Company of Rondout.

The "Niagara" joined the fleet of Cornell boats and towed out of the Rondout creek on the Rondout and New York route until the fall of 1896. She was then considered worn out and was no further used, and was sold to J. H. Gregory during the summer of 1897 and taken to Perth Amboy, N. J.—the graveyard of many of the Hudson river steamboats—and broken up.

Plans Progress For Blossom Fete

The second annual Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival will get under way Saturday, May 6, at 11 o'clock in the morning when at Forsyth Park a huge pageant and the coronation of Queen Joan Craig will take place. There will be various forms of entertainment for the public at the park and shortly before 1:30 o'clock the coronation day parade will begin to form.

With Chief Joseph L. Murphy as grand marshal the parade will form on Lucas avenue, Washington avenue and Hurley avenue and adjacent streets and promptly at 1:30 o'clock will begin its course through the city. The route of the parade will be over North Front street to Wall street, down Wall street to Main street and over Clinton avenue to Albany avenue and thence down Broadway to the Strand.

25 Floats in Line

Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the festival, said today that at least 25 gaily decorated floats would be in line. These floats will have to measure up to the standard set by the committee to be entered into the parade and some very elaborately designed there will be bands, the Kingston High School band of 40 pieces gaily uniformed will be in line and there will be several other musical aggregations.

The 15th Field Artillery will be in line and the entire procession will be presided over by Queen Joan from her throne.

At 8 o'clock the coronation ball and entertainment will take place at the municipal auditorium. There will be entertainment, the Woodstock Cheats and Swings will appear in old-fashioned dances and after they have displayed their talent the public will be asked to join in on the old-fashioned square sets.

Informal Dance

For those who attend the dance the committee in charge announces that the dance will be informal. Members of the committee will appear in formal attire.

At 9 o'clock the Queen will enter with her court and amid royal settings will take her place and reign over the festivities. Following the reception of the queen there will be general dancing.

Sunday there will be special rural life services in the churches of the county and the 1939 Apple Blossom Festival will be brought to a close on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock when a special union service will be held at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

Girl Scout Camp To Open in July

On July 2, 1939, Camp Wendy of the Ulster County Girl Scout camp on the Borden estate, will open for its 14th season. To many of the Ulster county Girl Scouts, this camp site is a familiar picture and it is expected this year that every county Scout will spend at least one week there.

The camp is scattered over 50 acres of woodland and open fields including a clear crystal-like lake where swimming and boating are of the best. There are six units divided according to the age of the girls. An entirely new unit is now being built for girls over 14 years of age who will live in Adirondack shacks. Part of their camping experience will be a three-day gypsy trip in the Shawangunk mountains.

Miss Lillian Parrish will again be director of Camp Wendy. This is good news for all old campers and the new girls will soon know why. Miss Parrish is not only a Girl Scout but a Mariner Scout, and has had a wide experience in camp life. Her idea of a vacation is to take a canoe trip through the wilds of Canada so one can readily see her love of the out of doors and realize her success in camping.

This year there will be four two-week encampments and one one-week encampment, which is the last week, August 20 to 27.

During the first encampment, July 2 to 16, there will be a three-day canoe trip on the Wallkill river for a limited number of girls and those interested in canoeing and boating are asked to sign up immediately for this encampment.

Camp folders may be secured from Miss Helen Hasbrouck, New Paltz, and Miss Mildred Eaton of Wawarsing.

Camp Incorporates

Camp Turkey Point, Inc., has been incorporated under the stock corporation law. The corporation is formed to conduct a summer camp for children and the capital stock is $20,000 to consist of 200 shares of a par value of $100. The principal office is at Saugerties and the three directors are Henry H. Paley of Saugerties, Edward Paley of 993 Carroll street in Brooklyn and Theresa E. TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
 Jocelyn Russell, heroine.
 Geoffrey Kensing, her good-looking, but dull fiancé.

Yesterday, Jocelyn, Bob and Thorndyke Russell have inherited money from their grandmother, but her large California estate is to be divided between the Russells and the family of Talbot Mack, with whom Grandmother Russell was once in love.

The Macks

A GAUNT old man with stooped, bony shoulders tugged an ancient tin trunk across the grass to a home-made trailer, stopping every two or three feet to puff, shift his cud of tobacco from one cheek to the other, and stare off across the endless fields of dry stubble. His wiry white hair was as thick and curly as a little boy's; his black eyes, deep in wrinkles, were bright as a ferret's. He mumbled to himself:

"Shoulda left this danged country years ago... stubborn young fool... time he was gettin' back here. Time we got goin'..."

A little girl, her black curls tied tightly with a red ribbon, her impish black eyes contradicting her cherubic countenance, came around the side of the farmhouse, lugging an enormous white cat,

"Sometime Friday, if the car doesn't get temperamental. Old Mack shifted Tex to his right shoulder and stared off across the rolling fields. "Too bad there ain't oil here. Some of that there black gold might've lifted off the mortgages and back taxes."

"This ain't oil land, Gramp. I talked to Kettinger over in Austin. Says he's taking the place over for the mortgage and paying off the government. One thousand acres of Texas... wonder what he will do with it?"

"Wait for an eastern sucker," Mack grinned, decorating the fence post with tobacco juice. "Y'know Tally, you should've come back here when you got out of college... should've gone into the law business in Austin... been a gentleman. I was a gentleman once... before I turned sailor and shipped the seventy seas."

Young Talbot regarded his grandfather with tolerant eyes. "What is a gentleman, Mack?"

"Never could figure it out," Gramp shook his curly white head. "Used to be a man that talked pretty, wore Prince Alberts and a gold watch-chain... owned a stable of fancy trotters. I just ain't interested. Tally, I'm too danged old to bother about fancy clothes and ain't no is'n't... say, what d'you call a gentleman, eh?"

"A man who takes whatever life hands out without whining, I guess. Anyhow, Gramp, I'm a farmer."

"Didya sell the cows?" asked old Mack.

who objected, by yowls and squirms, to being lugged.

Catching sight of the old man, she cried, "Gramp! Gramp! Tex don't want to go to California. You better make a cage for him quick!"

Old Talbot Mack scooped the writhing cat from her clutch and put him over his left shoulder. Tex subsided. He never purred. He disliked women. He was fierce and independent and predatory. His passion was baying dogs, cluding them up the nearest tree or fence post; then, if they were not too big, Tex jumped, with the sure swiftness of a puma, on their backs and dug his carefully sharpened claws into ears, nose and skin.

"I'll make him a harness, Betsy, though he'll buck worse'n a roped yearlin'."

A battered sedan pulled up before the front gate and a tall man in blue denim trousers and faded cotton shirt stepped out. The pants were rolled to the tops of dusty laced boots; the shirtsleeves were rolled above brown, muscular forearms. His hair was the color of liquid tar; his eyes even more black; his thin high-bridged nose was an eagle's beak; his mouth was wide and hard.

"Tex is ornery," the old man chuckled. "Ain't got enough sense 'know he's goin' to a real country. Say, Tally, didya sell the cows?"

"Yeah," Young Talbot lifted the trunk into the trailer, then turned to his grandfather. "Tex has more sense than the rest of us," he said, bitterness in his low voice. "If he hadn't lost the cotton crop I wouldn't stir a foot."

"What Is a Gentleman?"

"YOU can be an ornery critter, too," the old man told him crustily. "We shoulda packed and started for California six months ago when Josie left us her place instead of borrowin' money from the government for seed. Things were different here in my day... there was cattle roamin' this thousand acres..."

"Well, there's nothin' here now. Are Mom and Gretchen ready to leave? Everything packed?"

"Guess so. How much didya get for the cows?"

"Fifty dollars. And that's every cent we have. Gramp, I'll buy enough gas and food to get us to Santa Barbara, maybe. I don't like the idea of moving in on strangers when we can't hold up our end of things. How will we eat when we get there?"

"The Lord takes care of His own," observed the old man piously. "When do you reckon we'll put in at Josie's place, Tally?"

"Coulda been a lawyer," "I like farming," Tally started toward the house, his jaw set stubbornly.

Buried Alive

GRETCHEN met him in the hallway, her pretty face flushed with excitement. "Tally, did you see Betsy anywhere? We're all ready to go. Mama wants you to take the lunch basket out to the car. She's packed enough food for two days."

"Mostly cookies, I'll bet. Glad to be going, Sis?"

She nodded. "I'd be glad to go anywhere I guess. I feel as if I've been buried alive here for three years... ever since Andy..."

He put his arm about her slender shoulders. "I know. It's tough to be a widow at nineteen with a baby to look after. You've been swell. Sis. Maybe you will be happier out in California."

"I ought to find a job and take some of the load from you, Tally. It isn't right for you to have all of us."

"I want all of you. Ever think of that? Better find Betty so we can start."

Going on to the kitchen he found his mother fastening down the lid of a large wicker hamper.

"Ready, Mom?"

She handed him the hamper, then smoothed voluminous folds of cotton print over her stout, heavy-bosomed body. Lifting her arms, she brushed at strands of soft gray hair which clung to her round cheeks. "I must look a sight!" she scolded.

"You look beautiful, Mom." Bending down, he kissed the tip of her shining nose. "You're going to ride in front with me and Betsy can ride in back with Gramp and Sis."

"And Tex," she added. "You don't want to go, do you, Son?"

His face, as she smiled reassuringly into her concerned eyes, became tender and gentle. "I'm rarin' to go, Mom! I'll be glad to get the Texas dust out of my throat. But I wonder..." he paused, his smile disappearing—"how the Russell family is going to like our coming."

"Wonder, too," his mother agreed. "Oughtn't we to let them know we're startin' out?"

"They'll know soon enough."

Mrs. Mack sighed. "I know you wouldn't be going, Tally, if we could scrape a living from this place."

His lean face hardened. "But we can't, so that's that. Come on, Mom, we have a long way to go."

Continued tomorrow.

HEM AND AMY

IT WORKED ONCE!

By Frank H. Beck

Mrs. Askett (on telephone)—I sent my little boy for two pounds of bananas, and you sent only a pound and a half.

Grocer—My scales are all right, Mrs. Askett. Have you weighed your little boy since he got back?

Salesman—Boy-o-boy did Tillie throw a party last night?

Girl—You don't say! Who all was there?

Salesman—Just me and Tillie.

A little girl was carrying home some eggs, and dropped them.

"Did you break any?" asked her mother.

"No," said the child, "but the shells came off some of them."

Little John—Dad, why do people get married?

Dad—To raise children, sonny.

John—Aw, shucks, they could get all of those they wanted at the orphan asylum.

Guest—"Waiter, the service is terrible. You gave that fat man at the table next to mine a steak twice as big as the one you brought men. Where's the manager?"

Waiter—That fat guy's the manager.

A youth seated himself in a dentist's chair. He wore a wonderful shirt of striped silk and an even more wonderful checked suit. He had the vacant stare that goes with both.

"I'm afraid to give him gas," the dentist said to his assistant.

"Why," said the assistant.

"Well," said the dentist, "how will I know when he is unconscious?"

Little Girl—Mother, where do they keep the cross-eyed bear in Sunday School?

Mother—What cross-eyed bear, dear?

Little Girl—Oh, the "Holy Cross" bear, they sing about him all the time.

Man—You're an honest boy, but the money I lost was a ten-dollar note.

Boy—Yes, I know; I had it changed so you could give me a reward.

John—What's the matter old man? You look tired out.

Bill—It's my wife. She used to wake me up every time she heard a noise in the house, thinking maybe a burglar had made it.

John—But burglars don't make any noise.

Bill—That's what I told her, so now she wakes me up when she doesn't hear anything.

Most people prefer to do their own worrying. It is both wiser and more tactful therefore, not to worry about them unless you are immediately concerned.

Two Assistance Calls

To Local Department

Two calls for assistance were received over the mutual aid wire in headquarters at the Central Fire Station yesterday. The first was at 9 o'clock for fire in a barn on the Christian Brothers property at West Park. The fire department at Highland was assigned to the job.

The second call was at noon for a fire in the barn and house on the Weingarten property on Lucas avenue turnpike near the Fourth Binnewater. Unable to get in touch with the Binnewater fire department Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy assigned Excelsior Hose Company to the scene of the fire.

1939 Ford Truck Fleet Coming Here

Including 12 trucks of representative wheelbase sizes and body types, a 1939 Ford V-8 Truck Fleet will visit here Wednesday, May 3. The truck fleet will arrive at the showroom of Jas. Millard & Son, Inc., at 10 a. m. Mr. Millard, president of the local Ford agency, has invited local truck operators to see and drive these trucks during the fleet's visit here. The wide range of body types and wheelbases covers more than 90 per cent of all hauling requirements, he said, and the fleet's arrival will give truck owners an unparalleled opportunity to inspect the latest Ford V-8 models.

In the 12 trucks forming the fleet are included a 122-inch Ford Over-Engine stake truck; a 124-inch panel commercial car; a Ford-Dearborn Line Parcel Delivery unit especially adapted for hauling light but bulky loads, and widely used by laundries, dry cleaners, bakeries, package delivery companies, florists, department stores; a Ford-Theurer Milk Delivery unit used for retail milk deliveries; a Ford 101-inch Cab-Over-Engine tractor chassis with Fruehauf trailer for heavy duty delivery; a Ford-Thornton tandem axle drive Cab-Over-Engine dump truck; a 134-inch chassis; a Ford-Truckster six-wheeler with semi-high rack body; and a Ford-Gar Wood streamlined oil tank unit.

The 1939 Ford V-8 truck caravan will remain in this city for 24 hours, and truck operators wishing to test these new units are invited to communicate with Jas. Millard & Son, Inc.

Determined

Piney Creek, N. C.—Pretty 17-year-old Grace Hoppers, who wants to be a lawyer, overcame real obstacles to get her high school diploma.

Armless since birth, she writes well with her feet, embroiders, makes her clothes, milks cows, and combs and sets her hair.

Heap Big Mouth

Santa Fe—Because the white man's "weather medicine" failed to bring rain, a Navajo Indian lashed a government temperature gauge and yanked it from its moorings.

The Indian, John Katz, said he felt an "urge" to express displeasure when he became convinced Navajo rain gods were unimpressed by the weather instrument.

Katz, charged with destroying government property, was fined $25.

Driver Is Held After Accident

George Berigan, employed by Jacob Baker, of Accord, was arrested Saturday night by Trooper Arthur Reilly on a charge of driving a car without a license and also for failure to have his car equipped with a tail light or reflector. Arraigned before Justice Roger H. Loughran he paid fines of $5 each on each of the two charges.

Berigan's arrest followed a crash about 9 o'clock Saturday night, when his car, which according to Trooper Reilly, had been parked partly on the pavement of Route 206, between Hurley and Stone Ridge, was struck in the rear by a car driven by Isidor Rothstein of Woodstock.

Rothstein was coming to Kingston, accompanied by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jennie Weltman, of 1837 East Second street, Brooklyn, who was cut about the head when she was thrown against the windshield.

Rothstein said that he failed to see the Berigan car because it had neither tail light nor reflector. Berigan, who was driving his employer's car, said that he had stopped because of motor trouble.

APPLE BLOSSOM FESTIVAL

If present weather conditions continue, orchards throughout Ulster county should be in full and vigorous bloom for the Apple Blossom Festival which will be held this coming week-end, according to local authorities. The festival which has received wide publicity is expected to attract many visitors.

When the fruit trees throughout Ulster county orchards put forth their blossoms, the hills and valleys burst forth in a riot of color. This full glory of blossom time should not only be enjoyed by visitors but by local residents as well. Most people enjoy driving through the county at blossom time in order to enjoy the beauties which nature so bountifully provides. There are many different drives which one may take to see these seasonal beauties. One of the best routes would be to follow 9W to Marlborough, turning right to the village and going through Latintown and continuing north to Milton turnpike. At this point a number of different roads may be selected. A shorter drive could be taken by following the Milton turnpike to 9-W highway. If a longer drive is desired one might turn on the Milton turnpike and follow it through Tuckers Corners, Ardonia and Modena, returning to Kingston by way of New Paltz. There are many other sections of the county which will be equally interesting. Those familiar with the countryside will find a number of other drives along some of the country roads. These few suggestions may help those who may not know where best to view this beautiful spectacle of blossom time and encourage others to explore some other sections of the county.

The southern fruit belt of Ulster county is one of the richest in the country and the Apple Blossom Festival serves to attract added attention here. Besides the agricultural beauty and rich orchards, the festival has also attracted wide and favorable attention to Ulster's scenic beauty. Its three broad valleys of the Rondout, the Wallkill and the Esopus are incomparable scenically. Its historic background is also emphasized. Ulster county is known the world over as the birthplace of New York state's constitutional government. Kingston was the New York state capital in 1777 and also the site of the framing of the constitution of New York state. George Clinton of Ulster county was elected the first governor of the Empire State. Ulster county was one of the ten original counties in New York state and from it was carved Delaware, Greene and Sullivan.

Ulster county residents should be vitally concerned in the success of the Apple Blossom Festival. Every citizen who has genuine loyalty to the county should get behind the various committees of the festival and give whole-hearted support. Local people should need no exhortation to participate in all the events. In the final analysis, the benefits derived will benefit all residents of the county.

HITLER RIDES HIGH

Adolf Hitler has had his say—and a very clever speech it was, putting an intrusive President in his place and warming the hearts of the Nazis. Such performances help to wipe out the memory of indignities suffered by the German people since the war.

But a nation cannot live on oratory, no matter how satisfactorily it flays foreign critics and defies potential foes. After all the cheering and Heil-Hitlering, the people go back home to empty stomachs and headaches and muscles sore with the strain of armament work.

And it must occur to millions of Germans, who would like to be loyal to their leader, that the attempted "encirclement" of which he complains so bitterly is the natural consequence of the fierce Nazi armament race and the increasing forays against peaceful neighbors.

Anne O'Hara McCormick, brilliant American correspondent for the New York Times, wrote from Paris just before Hitler's last speech:

"If Mussolini and Hitler have not lost touch with the real needs and desperate desires of their people, if power and isolation from humanity have not blunted all sense of reality, it is inconceivable that they can respond with a categorical refusal to give the assurance the President asks. For beyond their 'no' lies certain disaster for themselves and for the world. Behind 'yes' lies the promise of a period of armistice in which international life might be organized on those bases of economic justice and readjustments without war which the League of Nations failed to build. This is no idle promise, for the New World whence the offer comes has learned something from the mistakes of the old."

But the dictators have refused such salvation.

NORWEGIANS IN THE LAKES

Inland transportation in America has mostly shifted from rivers to rails as the country developed, but the Great Lakes still have a good deal of traffic. It isn't all domestic iron ore, coal and limestone, either. As the navigation season reopens, foreign freighters appear on the Lakes, mostly Norwegian vessels, penetrating as far as 1,500 miles inland from salt water.

These craft, 260 feet long, with 42 feet beam and 18 feet draught, carry 2,500 tons of cargo, but have to drop some of it at Montreal because the upper St. Lawrence has only depth enough for 14 feet. Even so, these little ships make a living. They bring sugar from the West Indies and canned fish and general cargo from Europe. Out-bound, they take automobile parts, structural steel, grain, and so on.

How can they do it, when Great Lakes shipping men say there's no money in such traffic? They are accused of undercutting American wages. But their skippers insist that wages are about equal, in buying power at home. The profit, they explain, comes from ship design and economical operation, including the use of steam motors instead of ordinary steam engines.

To most landlubbers, watching those odd craft so far from home and salt water, there is romance in them and their sea smell. Doubtless there will be many more of them, and much larger ones, when the channel is deepened west of Montreal.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

WATER MAY PREVENT LOSS OF WEIGHT

When a diet expert outlines a reducing diet for an overweight patient he naturally allows the patient to drink water to some extent because water has little or no fuel value and does not put fat on the body. This allowing the patient to drink the ordinary amount of water in quite alright when the reducing diet is to be taken over a number of months; however, it is, in many cases, the cause of great disappointment.

Although fat is disappearing from the body while on the reducing diet as it is being used to supply part of the fuel or food supply, nevertheless the body seems to want to hold its weight for a while and takes an extra supply of water from the foods eaten, rather than let this water leave the body by the kidneys and skin. Thus, for two or three weeks, many overweight find that they have lost as much weight as expected. In another week or ten days, however, much weight will probably be lost due to this excess water leaving the body.

This excess water has been stored in the fat tissue; every pound of fat can hold three and a half pounds of water. It can thus be seen that if the overweight is taking the 14 or 15 day reducing diet, he or she may not lose much weight, whereas, if on a 30 to 90 day reducing diet, the loss of weight after three or four weeks will be very satisfactory.

If, in addition to continuing to drink water, the overweight continues to take his usual amount of salt, he will be even more disappointed in results because salt holds water in the tissues to the extent of 70 times its own weight.

One reminding overweight who wish to reduce that they must keep this matter of water balance in mind because after doing without much desired food for a week or two and finding that they have lost little or no weight, they may naturally think that their overweight is not due to eating more food than they need but to some condition of one or more of their glands. If they think that eating less food is not, therefore, going to reduce their weight, they will resume a full diet again, whereas another week or two on the reducing diet would have shown that too much food was really the cause of their overweight.

Overweight and Underweight

Do you know how much you or your children should weigh? Do you know which foods are most fattening than others? Send for Dr. Barton's useful booklet entitled "Overweight and Underweight" which answers these questions and contains diet suggestions for both overweight and underweight. Send your request to The Bell Library, 217 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the name of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

She found a garter snake on top of her linen closet.

SHADOW OVER OUR COURTS?

Normal School News

The La Falce Brothers' band of Newburgh has been chosen for the Junior Prom, May 8. Bids for the dance are to go on sale in the Normal School next week.

Dr. Robert S. Will, head of the Education Department spoke on "Ethics of the Teaching Profession" at a district superintendent's conference in Ellenville, April 28.

The New Paltz Home Hour was inaugurated over Station WGNV at Newburgh on April 26, from 10 to 11 o'clock. The program included the Girls' Glee Club from the Central High School, directed by Mrs. Dora Warner Arras; the Men's Glee Club of the Normal School, directed by Mr. Hoffman; a talk by B. H. Matteson, director of the Practice School; a clarinet solo by Don Hoffman, accompanied by Gertrude Simpson and concluding the program, a group of piano numbers by John Rogers of the Normal School, who is a senior from Middletown.

On May 3, the Kindergarten Primary Festival will be held in the Practice School. Miss Ruth Mack Havens, a member of the English department of the Normal School and also a kindergarten critic, and Miss Gertrude Thompson, kindergarten supervisor, are heading the plans. Primary student teachers and all those interested are invited.

Due to the proposed budget cut by the ways and means committee of the Albany assembly, New Paltz Normal School will be very much handicapped under the cut. The faculty list must either be cut or an all-around salary cut imposed. If this budget cut is carried by the legislature, a decrease of $17,070 in the school's annual allotment has been authorized in a letter from Dr. Herman Cooper, assistant commissioner of education and certification, to Dr. Van Dusen Berg.

Alpha Sigma Omicron is planning to hold its annual banquet May 5 at the Lorraine, Mrs. A. B. Bennett, retired head of the English department, will be master of ceremonies. Mrs. A. B. Bennett, Miss Barbara Pfaff, advisor to the group, and Miss Ruth Mack Havens will attend the banquet.

At last week's assembly, students of the Normal were delighted with the program by Donald Scott Morrison, brilliant young pianist. Introduced by Mr. Hoffman, Mr. Morrison explained that his program would be devoted to conversational music. "The history of dances was traced from the 17th century up to the works of Gerswin and his 'Rhapsody in Blue,' each song of which was correlated with a story.

Summer sessions to be held at New Paltz this summer and at Troy will register all day July 5. Several courses are being offered and if a sizeable enrollment warrants it, additional courses desired may be added.

Fight Between Labor Groups Will Become One of Issues In 1940, With Republicans Benefiting
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 2—It begins to look as if the controversy between the C.I.O. and the A. F. of L. will become one of the principal issues in the 1940 campaign, with the Republican party probably benefiting most by the whole affair.

This trend of development may be foreseen as a consequence of the strategy being pursued now by various groups with reference to the amendment of the National Labor Relations act. The Democratic administration, which appointed the present labor board, and the C.I.O., which is supporting the board in its fight to prevent any substantial amendment of the Wagner law, are joined on one side, and the probabilities are that the A. F. of L. will be lined up in opposition unless the congress between now and 1940 accedes to the requests of the A. F. of L. for a new labor board as outlined by the national convention of the A. F. of L. earlier this year.

Over the week-end, the fight between Presidents Green and Lewis of the A. F. of L. and C.I.O., respectively, was by no means made easier to solve by the issuance of a statement by the C.I.O. charging that the A. F. of L. has been collaborating with the National Association of Manufacturers in formulating amendments. Mr. Green stoutly denied this and demanded proof and also went before the Senate committee on labor and publicly declared that neither he nor the A. F. of L. favored the amendments which Senator Burke of Nebraska has been favoring.

Mr. Green also disclosed that the C.I.O. was approaching various A. F. of L. locals with propaganda designed to make the latter believe that the A. F. of L. chiefs were deserting collective bargaining and the main advantages gained under the Wagner law. As a matter of fact, the A. F. of L. chief and his associates are vehement in their declaration that what they have in mind will enhance the value of collective bargaining and safeguard craft workers against a reduction of pay or leveling off of standards in so-called industrial unions.

The conflict of opinion as between industrial and craft unions appears no nearer settlement than it has ever been. Mr. Green seems to think that the mere fact that this difference of opinion exists today is sufficient reason for amending the act so as to take away from the labor board the discretionary power under which it has assumed to decide as between craft and industrial units in collective bargaining.

But it doesn't look as if congress is going to tackle that question by legislation, at least not until there is further clarification of the public opinion of the country. The National Association of Manufacturers and other employer organizations probably would be highly pleased to see a situation arise wherein the clamor for amendments by the small business men of the country would go unheeded this year and thus the accumulated grievances might produce a severe reaction against the whole Wagner law in 1940. By refusing to make substantial amendments at this time, the groups which believe in letting the Wagner act go untouched are playing directly into the hands of those who really are at heart unfriendly to the act and who expect to get drastic revision or repeal when the 1940 elections come and, as they believe, will give the country a Republican congress.

Much of the opposition to the present Wagner law would be removed if amendments clarifying procedure and eliminating the discretionary power of the board as to when elections might be held were to be adopted. If nothing at all is done, the A. F. of L. will make demands at the 1940 congress and the Republican national convention, and the Republican presidential nominee will probably accept in toto the A. F. of L. position, whereas the Democrats would be maneuvered into accepting the C.I.O. position. In a showdown, the A. F. of L. is much stronger politically than the C.I.O. and can control more votes.

Since the Republicans are fast winning back much of the vote in the small towns and rural areas which they lost in 1932 and 1936, the possibility of splitting the vote again in something like normal proportions would be the best chance for the Republicans to assure themselves of victory. With the craft workers of America lined up with the Republican party, it is difficult to see how the Democrats can win the 1940 election. There is where the strategy which developed now with respect to the Wagner act hearings has much to do with the political outcome in 1940, and the mistakes being made this very month are the ones that the Democrats are going to be regretful about when the campaign of 1940 is under way and there is no chance to recover the A. F. of L. support by platform pledges or the candidate's promises.

PHOENICIA

Phoenicia, May 1—Bud Malloy, John Brooks and Mary McGrath, who attend Fleischmanns High School, were among the 20 pupils who took the trip to Washington, April 7. They went by Merrihew's bus driven by Smith Eignor and were chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly. They toured the battle field of Gettysburg and a short stop was made at Frederick, Md. The old and new national museums at Washington were visited. A trip was taken to Mt. Vernon, Alexandria, Arlington, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Amphitheater and Lee's Mansion. Sunday afternoon they took in Froer Gallery, Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial and a trip around Tidal Basin. Also the Library of Congress, Monday, the Botanical Gardens, Bureau of Printing and Engraving and Bureau of Investigation Government Printing Office, capital and supreme court buildings, and many other points of interest were visited. Among these were the White House, Pan-American building, Independence Hall, Betsy

Ross house and the United States Mint.

Clarence Yerry, known as "Manny", was seized with a stroke Friday and was taken to the hospital Saturday.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 90—Niagara

The "Niagara" was another of those Hudson river steamboats which spent part of her days in passenger service and finally in the towing business, and eventually brought her career to a close during her term of service out of the Rondout creek.

The wooden hull of the "Niagara" was built by William and Thomas Collyer of New York city in 1844. She was powered by a vertical engine with a 65 inch cylinder and a 11 foot stroke, constructed by Hogg & Delamater of New York.

During her career as a passenger carrier, the "Niagara" was 265 feet long, breadth of beam 28 feet 6 inches, depth of hold 9 feet 3 inches, tonnage rated at 668 tons.

Built as a Hudson river dayboat, the "Niagara" made her appearance in June 1845, running on the route between Troy and New York in line with the steamboat "Troy" on the regular dayline. The following year (1846) saw the return of the "Niagara" to the Troy line, and she continued in this service until the season of 1847 brought to an end the history of the Troy dayline.

In the spring of 1848 the "Niagara" was sold to the Housatonic Railroad Company who transferred her area of service from the Hudson river to Long Island Sound—operating her between Bridgeport and New York until 1853. During these five years on the Bridgeport route, the "Niagara" was found to be too large and of too great a draft of water for this particular route, and in the year 1854 the Niagara was returned to service on the Hudson river.

Upon her return to the river for which she was built, the "Niagara" was used for towing purposes and was finally purchased by Samuel Schuyler who converted her into a towboat. The length of the "Niagara" was reduced to 251 feet, her gross tonnage was cut down to 510 and her net tonnage to 352 tons.

Samuel Schuyler then placed the Niagara on the route between Albany and New York, towing in line with the other vessels in the Schuyler fleet. She operated under the Schuyler banner until the fall of 1880 when the Schuyler Line went out of existence. Then she came into the possession of the Beverweke Towing Line, and finally, in 1891, the "Niagara" was purchased by the Cornell Steamboat Company of the Rondout.

The "Niagara" joined the fleet of Cornell boats and towed out of the Rondout creek on the Rondout and New York route until the fall of 1896. She was then considered worn out and of no further use, and was sold to J. H. Gregory during the summer of 1897 and taken to Perth Amboy, N. J.—the graveyard of many of the Hudson river steamboats—and broken up.

Miss Joan Craig and Part of Her Court

Miss Joan Craig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Craig of Kingston, was chosen Queen of the 1939 Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival last Friday evening at the New Paltz Normal School auditorium. Miss Craig, who is the second Kingston High School girl to be chosen for the honor, is a sophomore. She will be crowned at the Coronation ceremonies at Forsyth Park May 6, and will reign at the Coronation Ball that evening. The queen and her court are pictured above following the final judging. They are, left to right: Gloria Woolsey, of Marlborough; Marie Hanke, of Wallkill; Joan Craig, of Kingston; Olive Atkinson, of New Paltz; and Frieda Strongman, of Highland.

Winter Concert Programs Given

Taking note of the unanimously expressed delight of its members over the concert given last season by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, Rodinski conducting, the committee in charge for the four concerts of the series given by the Cooperative Concert Association each year, has secured the National Orchestra for next season with Hans Kindler conducting. A Metropolitan Opera star and other exceptionally attractive programs will complete the 1939-40 series which is scheduled as follows:

Anna Kaskas, Metropolitan Opera contralto soloist, whose rich voice and fascinating personality has made her such a great favorite, will appear Wednesday, November 8, at the high school auditorium.

The National Symphony Orchestra, now so famous, with Kindler conducting, will be the second concert on Sunday afternoon, December 17, at the municipal auditorium.

On Tuesday evening, March 5, 1940, the exceedingly popular young baritone soloist, Lansing Hatfield, will be the artist at the high school auditorium. Mr. Hatfield, who is being loudly acclaimed by the accredited critics will be one of the soloists at the World's Fair.

The series of concerts will be brought to a close by Bartlett and Robertson, two-piano artists so widely known, each as an artist in his own right. This concert will be given at the high school auditorium, Monday, April 15.

Rommel-Schiller

Miss Gertrude Schiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schiller of Tillson, and Ernest Rommel, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rommel of Bridgeport, Conn., were united in marriage Sunday, April 30, at the Little Church Around the Corner, in New York city. They were attended by Miss Marie Kubicek of this city, and Peter Calchiera of Bridgeport, Conn.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore an ensemble of navy blue with matching accessories and a corsage of corsage and sweet peas. The bridesmaid was also in navy with matching accessories and wore a corsage of sweet peas.

Following the ceremony the bride party proceeded to the Hotel New Yorker where a wedding dinner was served. Following a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Providence, R. I.

Dormant Addresses Savings Delegates

did not approve of savings accounts in national banks.

The savings and loan associations were found to be doing a good work in helping people to buy homes—something that most persons do but once in a lifetime.

It was stated that people are still thrifty, as was shown by the number of shares held in savings and loan associations and deposits in savings banks in 1938.

Cantline Presides

President Cantline presided at the dinner last night and presented as the first speaker Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who cordially welcomed the visitors to Kingston. He told the Loan Association members that from his experience as a banker he was familiar with the work they were doing in Kingston, through which many citizens here were being helped to own their own homes. He said that he knew what they were up against these days and that he was trying to help by "keeping taxes down and giving the people a good government." He said that taxes were very reasonable and lower than they were six or seven years ago.

The mayor told the visitors that if they got in trouble from passing red lights, he couldn't interfere as that was something he never had done, but that he could visit them in their cell and play Chinese checkers with them and if any of the ladies were involved he would visit them and read Anthony Adverse.

President Cantline moved a vote of thanks to the members of the Kingston Savings and Loan Association and their presidents, E. Frank Flanagan and Fred J. Walter, for the fine arrangements they had made for entertainment of the convention. He introduced the new officers of the Southeastern League—Reginald H. Davies of Beacon, president; H. Harrison Farnum of Port Jervis, vice president; Samuel Sheldon of Pearl River, secretary-treasurer.

President Fitzpatrick of the State League also was presented and spoke briefly.

Governor Lehman Signs Conway Bill

Governor Lehman has affixed his signature to Assemblyman E. J. Conway's bill amending the New York City Administrative Code. The bill provides for more generous initial payments upon the taking of property for water supply purposes and also changes the procedure relative to appointment of commissioners of appraisal.

Charter Night For Troop Three

Troop No. 3, sponsored by St. Joseph's Church held their parents' night meeting Sunday, at the school hall. Thirty Scouts and their parents and friends attended. Albert N. Cook, chairman of the troop committee presided. He first introduced R. Gardner Burns, Scout executive, who presented the charter for Troop No. 3 to the Rev. John P. McAdams, as the head of the sponsoring institution.

Dr. H. W. Keator, president of the Ulster-Greene Council, gave a short talk on scouting and the need for it in the present times. Mr. Cook then introduced the members of the Troop Committee who presented awards to the scouts which they had won during the year. John Egan, Harry Howard, Barent Cater, Albert N. Cook, John N. Cordis, Walter Miller and Stanley Dempsey are members of the Troop Committee. Mr. Burns presented each Scout with his new registration card. The Scouts gave three demonstrations of scouting for the benefit of the parents.

Medals were awarded to Scouts J. Tancredi, E. Carson, J. Howard, E. Gerlach and D. Krempfer for having an attendance record of 90 per cent or better at troop meetings for the past two years. The following received medals for 90 per cent attendance the past year: B. Quilty, S. Dempsey, J. Stanton, N. Hurrell, R. Cordeau, R. Crosby, B. Cater.

Katz Case Heard In Supreme Court

An action arising out of an explosion and fire in the Sophia W. Katz home on Broadway came to trial this morning in supreme court before Justice Foster and a jury. The action is brought by Sophia W. Katz and The Home Insurance Company and others against Conrad Robinson and another who were doing business under the name of Ulster Fuel Oil Co.

Thomas J. Plunket is attorney of record for plaintiff and Cashin & Ewig appear for the defendants. Roscoe V. Elsworth also appears for one of the plaintiffs.

The action arises over an alleged fire and explosion which took place in the house while work was being done about the oil burner by a man connected with the defendants.

The selection of a jury was undertaken at the opening of court and the case progressed during the morning.

Walter, Cragin Decline Positions

It is understood that Fred J. Walter, vice president of the Board of Education, and Dr. Arthur M. Cragin, whose terms as members of the board expire, have declined reappointment. It is expected that Mayor C. J. Heiselman will announce soon the names of those he expects to appoint to fill the two vacancies on the board.

Mr. Walter has been a member of the education board for the past ten years, and both he and Dr. Cragin are declining reappointment owing to pressure of business. Both men have given much time to the work of the board, especially during the construction of the Myron J. Michael School and the new vocational school.

'New' Styles Very Few, Says Clothing Expert

There are few really new fashions even though they vary with each new season. If present-day styles are examined one will see ideas which were leaders in the fashion world of years ago, according to Vivian Minyard, clothing specialist.

"Redingotes" are popular styles at present. The slip of the redingote is usually of print material and the sheer coat to be worn with it of a plain material. In 1806 this was also a leading fashion. More elaborate materials and more yardage were used then but the idea is the same.

Sleeves with fullness at the top are popular present-day styles in all types of dresses. The idea for these may have come from the "Leg-O-Mutton" sleeves of 1825. These sleeves were much more elaborate, so again the present-day tendency is toward the more conservative fashions.

"Basques" today are not so different from those worn in 1850. Today's version has less fullness in the skirt.

The "Gibson Girl" of 1900 has been repeated in 1938 fashions. These styles in 1900 featured small waists, full skirts, etc., and were picturesque styles. Today they are comfortable and smart looking with the fitted waist line, fullness in the blouse, and flares or pleats in the skirt.

Ideas in fashion have been handed to us from ancient people. For instance, the ancient Egyptians had the custom of wearing bands around the head to keep the hair in place. We retain the fashion but place the band inside the hat. Streamers and broad brims for children's hats probably came from a Greek custom. To protect the head from the sun, these people wore that type of hat.

Many things have direct influence on fashion. People in the headlines are responsible for particular styles. War, economic conditions, activities, world events, etc., all suggest possibilities to the designers.—Vivian Minyard, Extension Specialist.

Factory of Roman Era Unearthed in England

An industrial establishment with a number of furnaces and part of a blacksmith's forge has been disclosed on the Roman site at Colinton Park, Dorchester, says the Times, of London.

"On the western part of the area one of the large buildings has been uncovered, and from the number of furnaces it contains appears to have been some kind of industrial establishment. So far, however, it has not been possible to determine what was manufactured. One curious feature is a large shallow pit cut down into the chalk which was found to be filled with ashes and a mass of small shingle.

"To the north of this building part of a blacksmith's forge has been disclosed with a neatly built hearth of limestone blocks. Two short lines of animal bones project outward from it on either side. These bones, carefully embedded upright on the chalk floor, would appear to have no practical use, and it may be supposed they had some superstitious significance.

"Iron fragments were found in the ashes of the forge, and also a number of Third century coins and gaming counters.

"A cutting into the bank behind the Roman town wall has revealed the manner in which this work was strengthened with a rubble core and a revetment wall at the foot.

"On the eastern part of the site trial trenches have remained of a Roman street running north and south. This is lightly metalled and must have been one of the minor streets running between some of the insulae, or blocks of buildings.

Plans Progress For Blossom Fete

The second annual Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival will get under way Saturday, May 6, at 11 o'clock in the morning when at Forsyth Park a huge pageant and the coronation of Queen Joan Craig will take place. There will be various forms of entertainment for the public at the park and shortly before 1:30 o'clock the coronation day parade will begin to form.

With Chief Joseph L. Murphy as grand marshal the parade will form on Lucas avenue, Washington and Hurley avenue and adjacent streets and promptly at 1:30 o'clock will begin its course through the city. The route of the parade will be over North Front street to Wall street, down Wall street to Main street and over Clinton avenue to Albany avenue and thence down Broadway to the Strand.

25 Floats in Line

Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the festival, said today that at least 25 gaily decorated floats will be in line. These floats will have to measure up to the standard set by the committee to be entered into the parade and some very elaborately designed have been prepared. In addition there will be bands, the Kingston High School band of 40 pieces gaily uniformed will be in line and there will be several other musical aggregations.

The 156th Field Artillery will be in line and the entire procession will be presided over by Queen Joan from her throne.

At 8 o'clock the coronation ball and entertainment will take place at the municipal auditorium. There will be entertainment, the Woodstock Cheats and Swings will appear in old-fashioned dances and after they have displayed their talent the public will be asked to join in on the old-fashioned square sets.

Informal Dance

For those who attend the dance the committee in charge announces that the dance will be informal. Members of the committee will appear in formal attire.

At 9 o'clock the Queen will enter with her court and amid royal settings will take her place and reign over the festivities. Following the reception of the queen there will be general dancing.

Sunday there will be special rural life services in the churches of the county and the 1939 Apple Blossom Festival will be brought to a close on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock when a special union service will be held at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

Episcopal Group To Meet in City

The annual meeting of Hudson Archdiocese of the Episcopal diocese of New York will be held in St. John's Church tomorrow, from 11 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. This is the first time in several years that the meeting has been held as far north in the diocese as Kingston.

The program will begin with Holy Communion in the church at 11 a. m. The public is invited to this service. The celebrant will be the Rt. Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, D. D., Suffragan Bishop of the diocese and archdeacon of this district. He will be assisted by the Rev. Maurice W. Venno, rector of St. John's Church, and by the Rev. William A. Grier, rector of Holy Cross Church. The speaker will be the Rev. S. Taggart Steele, Jr., D. D., vicar of the Intercession Chapel, New York city.

The business meeting of the Archdiocesan Council will open at 12 o'clock. Reports of the officers and special committees will be heard. New officers to be elected are diocesan representatives, one clergyman to council for three years, one layman to council for two years, a secretary and treasurer. This will be followed by the reports of missions and assisted parishes. The Rev. Philip I. Styles, rector of St. George's Church, Newburgh, is chairman of the council.

At 1 p. m. luncheon will be served by the Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's Church. Reservations should be telephoned at once to the rectory or to Miss Beulah Smith, at 3927. The session will be resumed immediately afterwards.

Girl Scout Camp To Open in July

On July 2, 1939, Camp Wendy of the Ulster County Girl Scout camp on the Borden estate, will open for its 14th season. To many of the Ulster county Girl Scouts, this camp site is a familiar picture and it is expected this year that every county Scout will spend at least one week there.

The camp is scattered over 50 acres of woodland and open fields including a clear crystal-like lake where swimming and boating are of the best. There are six units divided according to the age of the girls. An entirely new unit is now being built for girls over 14 years of age who will live in Adirondack shacks. Part of their camping experience will be a three-day gypsy trip in the Shawangunk mountains.

Miss Lillian Parrish will again be director of Camp Wendy. This is good news for all old campers and the new girls will soon know why. Miss Parrish is not only a Girl Scout but a Marine Scout, and has had a wide experience in camp life. Had a good deal of a vacation is to take a canoe trip through the wilds of Canada so one can readily see her love of the out of doors and realize her success in camping.

This year there will be four two-week encampments and one one-week encampment, which is the last week, August 20 to 27.

During the first encampment, July 2 to 16, there will be a three-day canoe trip on the Walkill river for a limited number of girls and those interested in canoeing and boating are asked to sign up immediately for this encampment.

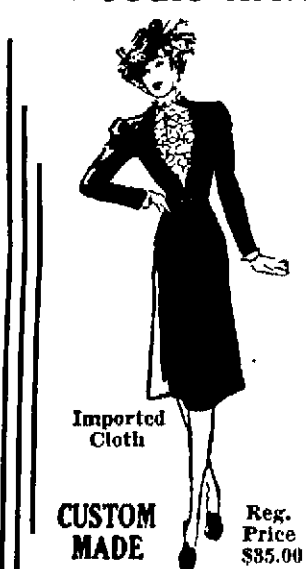

Camp folders may be secured from Miss Helen Hasbrouck, New Paltz, and Miss Mildred Eaton of Wawarsing.

Camp Incorporates

Camp Turkey Point, Inc., has been incorporated under the stock corporation law. The corporation is formed to conduct a summer camp for children and the capital stock is $20,000 to consist of 200 shares of a par value of $100. Five Teams Comprise City Baseball League for 1939 Season

Two Clubs Given Time to Post Fees, Schedule Opens 9th

Bill Murphy and Dick Dulin Chosen Umpires; "Meb" Lynch Will Be Groundskeeper

Jones Dairy, Closi A. C., Grunewalds, Kingston Independents and Boiceville Rangers will comprise the five team first half City League twilight circuit. With the Knights of Columbus definitely abandoning plans for a first half entry, the athletic field loop will get under way on a four-game per week basis next Tuesday, May 9. Last night's business session in the city hall with Treasurer Ed Banks rapping the gavel in the absence of President Joe Kelly saw final plans for the initial half completed.

Dulin, Murphy Umpires
Dick Dulin and William "Pie" Murphy were installed as umpires for the first half campaign with Bill Scully as alternate. Melvin "Meb" Lynch was selected by the managers as groundskeeper for first half duty with Patsy DeCicco named as alternate for the caretaker's duties. Dulin and Murphy are holdovers from last season's diamond battles while Lynch was first half caretaker last season.

The board of managers approved the amendment regarding the transfer of players from one team to another at the close of the first half, providing said player obtained consent of manager on whose roster he signed for the first half.

Ed Banks, veteran treasurer, took over the reins and conducted last night's important business session. Entry fees for the twilight circuit were forwarded by Grunewalds, Jones Dairy and the Kingston Independents with extension granted the Boiceville Rangers and Closi A. C.

Lineups Submitted
The first half playing rosters were submitted to Secretary Geoghan with only one conflict occurring. Closi A. C. waived on Jimmy Turck and the Kingston Independents claimed him for first half duty. The Independents, last year's championship team, put out a powerful combination for two-inning duty. Jack Schatzel, former Jones Dairy first sacker, and Bud Swarthout, Closi south paw along with Red McLean, fancy fielding Redricks shortstop, give the business boys added strength. The Jones Dairy's lineup was bolstered by the addition of Charley Neff, fireball flinger, and Joe Brown, ace Casey smoke-ball slinger with Julius Chick, Paul Misove and George Celuch also on hand. Speed Scherer and Jimmy Ashdown are other newcomers to the batter and egg boys' roster.

Closi's Stand Pat
Gus Steigewald's surprising Closi A. C. unit is standing pat on last year's second half surprise and the grocery boys will feature old standbys when they prance on the field this season. Johnny Weiss' Grunewalds have added Gil Kelder, Red Slight, Bill Hanley, Jack Strubel, Al Hasbrouck, Myron Herrick, Art Peper and Earl Newell in wholesale house cleaning of the 38 unit.

Lou Knapp's Boiceville Rangers, making their debut in City League competition this season, feature Orville Sweet, Saugerties tosser and Buddy Zoller, curveball flipper as well as Ray Schneider, former Kingston High School center-fielder and Bob Naussbaum of Phoenix's strong nine.

The rosters of the City League entrants as forwarded to Secretary Jim Geoghan are:

Kingston Independents
Gene Rider, Joe Messinger, Bob Bush, Bud Swarthout, Bing Van Etten, Jack Schatzel, Charley Beck, Red McLean, Ad Stumph, Jim Turck, Tommy Maines, Andy Dykes, Pres. Knight, Charley Lay and Jack Dawkins.

Jones Dairy
George Celuch, Julius Chick, Charley Neff, Joe Brown, Paul Misove, George Zadany, A. Berardi, Chappie Van Zee, Andy Celuch, Ralph DeCicco, Johnny Berardi, Jim Ashdown, Elmer Hopper, T. Berardi and Speed Scherer.

Grunewalds
Joe Dulin, Tommy Lamb, Bob Purvis, Ed Minasian, Vobe Smedes, Gil Kelder, Red Slight, Joe Mahar, Bill Hanley, Jack

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

If you'll take a quick look at the National League standings today, you'll find them headed by the Boston Bees. You are urged to look quickly merely because, this early in the race, one or two games can have such a far-reaching effect on the lineup. No disrespect is intended either for the Bees or their ability to survive in this rarefied atmosphere.

There's little percentage in being disrespectful toward the Bees at their present rate of locomotion. Bill Terry's New York Giants—wasn't that "the strongest club I've ever had"—tried it, and where did it get them? Right into the doghouse—or, to be specific, from sixth place into seventh, just one game out of the cellar.

In any event, as National League's western teams come east and the American's eastern clubs go west for the first time today, there are the Bees, a full game up on the Reds and a game and a half in front of the Cubs.

The Best Pitching
From four right-handers, three of them 32 years old and the other a mere boy of 29, Casey Stengel has coaxed the Loop's best pitching. From an infield that has a 1938 outfielder at third base and a rookie up from Kansas City at shortstop, he has got air-tight fielding and 16 double plays in 11 games. From an outfield that features Al Simmons, 35-year-old fugitive from the American League, and Johnny Cooney, a 37-year-old ball hawk, he has drawn just enough speed and batting punch to produce four straight victories on an average turnout of nine hits per game. They did it again yesterday, with Bill Posedel making his first start at winning one and Tony Cuccinello coming up with a three-run homer that clinched the 7-2 defeat of the Giants. Posedel retired 18 men in order, had a no-hitter until two were out in the seventh, and wasn't scored on until the ninth, when the Terry men broke through with three singles surrounding a Boston error.

Terry Puzzled
This performance by Posedel and the Bees, which left Terry even more bewildered as to how to check his club's amazing nose-dive, stood out on a foreshortened but important big league program. In the other two games the Pirates snapped their eight-game losing streak with a 2-1 triumph over the Reds, and the Dodgers tied for fourth place by edging out the Phillies, 13-12, in a typical Ebbets Field scramble.

Rip Sewell was the lad who pulled Pittsburgh up by its bootstraps. In gaining his first big-league victory, he set the Rhinelanders down with six hits while Johnny Rizzo's two time doubles were driving in the winning runs.

American Washout
Rain washed out the Indians-Tigers duel, only one scheduled for the American League. The junior circuit claimed an extra-curricular triumph, though, as the White Sox blasted Dizzy Dean's "nothing ball" for seven hits and all their runs in four innings to beat the Cubs, 4-1, in a benefit game that raised close to $30,000 for Monty Stratton.

Diz Unimpressive In Benefit Game
Chicago, May 2 (AP)—The famed $183,000 right arm of Jerome "Dizzy" Dean is apparently no better than it was when he "threwed himself out" against the New York Yankees in the world series last October.

That was the impression prevailing today after Dean's first pitching assignment of the year. He faced the Chicago White Sox yesterday in a benefit game that netted between $25,000 and $30,000 for Monty Stratton, one-time Sox pitcher who lost a leg in a hunting accident. Until yesterday Dean had pitched only two innings since the Yankees crushed him and his performance was anything but impressive. The Sox whacked him for seven hits in four innings to win 4 to 1 and unanimously asserted he didn't have a thing.

Dean may be lost to the Cubs until at least mid-summer. The colorful pitcher, after working four innings, admitted that his arm was sore; that it was weak and tired.

"There's no use kidding myself," Dean moaned. "It really hurts. It's sore as the deuce up here," pointing to a muscle over his shoulder. But he hastened to add, "It isn't sore where it was last year, under the shoulder blade. I'll just have to take things easy I guess. I think it is just weakness. It looks like I'll have to strengthen my arm, that's all."

New Game for U. S.
Jai-Alai (pronounced jai-ai), the national game of Spain, has found favor with American participants, however, because years of training are necessary.

The game is played with long, curved rackets, woven from straw, called cestas, which are used to throw a hard ball, called the pelota, against a solid wall, much like the American game of handball is played. There are only two frontons (stadiums) in the United States, one in New York city and the other at Miami, Fla. In Spain many of the churches are built with one side flat so it can be used by jai-alai players.

St. Mary's Drill At Block Park
St. Mary's Church softball team, which will play in the Catholic League, is scheduled to practice tonight at 6 o'clock previous to the meeting in the school. The workout will be held at Block Park. On the roster of the club to date are Jimmy Albany and Babe Larkin for the battery; Sonny Woods, Hank Krum, Jack Kelly, Jim Hawkins, Andy Murphy and others.

SUNNY JIM AND JOHNSTOWN

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons wouldn't say, in advance of the Kentucky Derby, that he believed Johnstown (above) was another Man o' War. But he did declare that Johnstown was "a nice colt," had done "everything asked of him," and might turn out to "be a great one." That conservative opinion was expressed just after Johnstown galloped away with the Wood Memorial at Jamaica. Here Sunny Jim leads Johnstown out for a workout at his aqueduct home quarters, from which the colt was shipped to Kentucky.

St. Mary's Drill At Block Park

St. Mary's Church softball team, which will play in the Catholic League, is scheduled to practice tonight at 6 o'clock previous to the meeting in the school. The workout will be held at Block Park. On the roster of the club to date are Jimmy Albany and Babe Larkin for the battery; Sonny Woods, Hank Krum, Jack Kelly, Jim Hawkins, Andy Murphy and others.

Woodstock, N. Y.—More than 40 crack midget auto pilots are expected to participate in the inaugural events at the Woodstock Legion Speedway, Sunday, May 14.

In addition to many of the drivers who appeared last season at the quarter-mile oval, others equally well known to followers of the sport will compete. Among those better known to Woodstock Legion Speedway fans who will return are George Krantz, Len Fanelli, Carl Carlson, Ed Buckley, Eddie Jones, Jazz Chambers, Wild Bill Damico, Chauncey Maggiamo, Bill DeMosh, Bob King, Joe Erisak and others.

Official starter of all events will be Paul Dominique, who is well-known throughout the nation for his outstanding ability and fairness. Dominique will be assisted by an electric eye timing device and at either bend of the track dual control traffic lights have been installed.

New Seats
A new tile drainage has been placed under the track to insure rapid drying of the asphalt surface. The grandstand section has been enlarged and new seats have been erected.

Eight events will feature each card in addition to the time trials. The feature race will be 25 laps in length.

Drivers and their friends were guests of the speedway officials at a dinner last month and more than 90 persons were present. At that time about half of the midget pilots said they have new cars, while others reported great improvements.

Speedway directors anticipate more than 7,500 persons will witness the May 14 races. Events will be run all summer every second and fourth Sunday.

Talking About New Backboards

New York, May 2 (AP)—Members of the basketball rules committee have their heads glued together in a local hotel room at the moment, swapping stories and thinking up changes in the playing rules.

Last night the visiting rules surgeons sat with gleaming eyes through a demonstration of new streamlined backboards, one of them boasting more curves than a roller coaster. Don't be surprised if the old familiar backboard is dead as a shot duck by tomorrow night.

The one that tickles the coaches most is a convex number. That is, it bulges out toward the hoop and curves back some four inches to the outside edges.

The merit of this arrangement, reveals its inventor, is that it affords a clear shot at the hoop from the very corner of the court, even where the court extends four feet beyond the backboard, or bank, as it frequently does. With the present flat bank such a shot is, of course, impossible. But why should a forward who gets himself trapped in a corner be treated to a try at the basket?

Polish Softies Hold 1st Practice

Immaculate Conception Athletic Club held its first softball practice last night at Hasbrouck Park, and according to reports the Polish boys looked exceptionally good in the workout to put them in shape for the beginning of the Catholic Softball League.

After the drill, the players and others interested in the club met at the Polish school hall to elect officers, and the following were chosen: President, Val Skop; Ray Demski, vice-president; Paul Argulewicz, secretary; Joseph Lukaszewski, treasurer; John Zolnowski, financial secretary; Frank Wojciechowski, manager.

Another practice will be held Friday at 6 p. m. at Hasbrouck Park. All interested in playing with the club are invited to attend. Efforts will be made to extend the activities of the organization beyond softball and make it a year-round club.

Walker Expects Crowd at Dinner

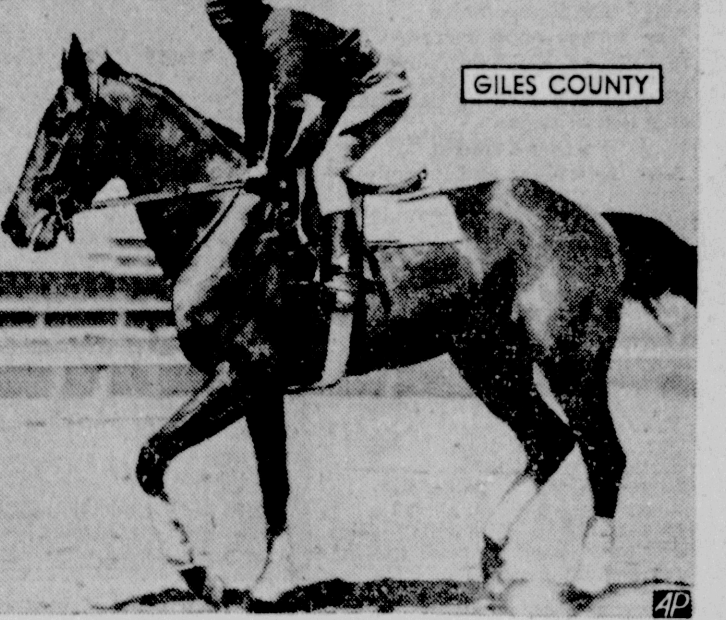

Harry B. Walker, head of the Kingston Horsemen's Association, today reported reservations selling rapidly for the annual dinner at Schoerter's Hotel on the Saugerties road, Thursday, May 4, and predicted a record turnout, surpassing even the jolly crowd that enjoyed last year's event.

"May 1 is set as the deadline for reservations," Walker said, "and I hope all intending to attend the dinner will register by then." The horsemen are very exact and always close reservations on the date set having no mercy for those who are tardy.

GILES COUNTY ENTERED IN DERBY

Giles County, bay son of Gallant Fox, 1930, Derby winner, is entered in the 1939 renewal of the Kentucky classic. Giles County is owned by the Milky Way Farms of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, and won two of nine starts as a two-year-old.

HANTS A DERBY DARK HORSE

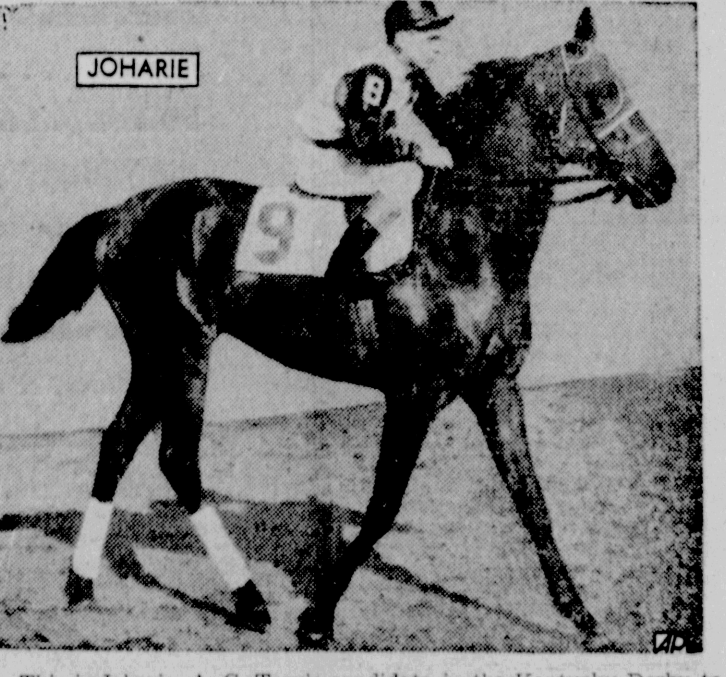

Hants, bay gelding from the Hal Price Headley stables, is entered in the 1939 Kentucky Derby to be run at Churchill Downs May 6. Hants is out of Pooks Hill by Stratheven.

HEATHER BROOM READY FOR DERBY

John Hay Whitney's Heather Broom, shown during a workout at Belmont Park, was considered a likely Kentucky Derby starter when the 1939 classic is run at Churchill Downs May 6. The horse's trainer is the former jockey, Earl Sande, himself a three-time victor in the race.

JOHARIE A POSSIBILITY IN DERBY

This is Joharie, A. G. Torn's candidate in the Kentucky Derby to be run May 6 at Churchill Downs. Joharie's chances appeared brighter after the horse won a race at the Keeneland, Ky., track during training for the bluegrass classic.

TWO AGAINST LOVE

by Frances Hanna

The Characters
 Jocelyn Russell, heroine.
 Geoffrey Kensington, her good-looking, but dull fiance.

Yesterday, Jocelyn, Bob and Thorndyke Russell have inherited money from their grandmother, but her large California estate is to be divided between the Russells and the family of Talbot Mack, with whom grandmother Russell was once in love.

Chapter Two

The Macks

A GAUNT old man with stooped, bony shoulders tugged an ancient tin trunk across the grass to a home-made trailer, stopping every two or three feet to puff, shift his cud of tobacco from one cheek to the other, and stare off across the endless fields of dry stubble. His wiry white hair was as thick and curly as a little boy's, his black eyes deep in wrinkles, were bright as a ferret's. He mumbled to himself:

"Shoulda left this danged country years ago... stubborn young fool... time he was gettin' back here. Time we got 'em..."

A little girl, her black curls tied tightly with a red ribbon, her unpinkish black eyes contradicting her cherubic countenance, came around the side of the farmhouse lugging an enormous white cat.

"Didya sell the cows?" asked old Mack.

who objected, by yowls and squirms, to being lugged.

Catching sight of the old man, she cried, "Grampa! Grampa! You better make a cage for him quick!"

Old Talbot Mack scooped the writhing cat from her clutch and put him over his left shoulder. Tex subsided. He never purred. He disliked women. He was fierce and independent and predatory. His passion was bailing dogs, eluding them up the nearest tree or fence post; then, if they were not too big, Tex jumped, with the sure swiftness of a puma on their backs and dug his carefully sharpened claws into ears, nose and skin.

"I'll make him a harness, Betsy, though he'll buck worse'n a roped yearlin'."

A battered sedan pulled up before the front gate and a tall man in blue denim trousers and faded cotton shirt stepped out. The pants were rolled to the tops of dusty laced boots, the shirtsleeves were rolled above brawn, muscular forearms. His hair was the color of liquid tar, his eyes even more black; his thin high-bridged nose was an eagle's beak, his mouth was wide and hard.

"Tex is ornery," the old man chuckled. "Ain't got a high sense 't know he's goin' to a real countin'. Say, Tally, didya sell the cows?"

"Yeah," Young Talbot lifted the trunk into the trailer, then turned to his grandfather. "Tex has more sense than the rest of us," he said, bitterness in his low voice. "If I hadn't lost the cotton crop I wouldn't sur a foot."

"What is a Gentleman?"

"YOU can be an ornery crier 't too," the old man told him crustily. "We shoulda packed and started for California six months ago when Josie left us her place instead of borrowin' money from the government for seed. Things were different here in my day, there was cattle roamin' this thousand acres."

"Well, there's nothin' here now. Are Mom and Gretchen ready to leave? Everything packed?"

"Guess so. How much didya get for the cows?"

"Fifty dollars. And that's every cent we have. Grampa, I'll buy enough gas and food to get us to Santa Barbara, maybe. I don't like the idea of movin' in on strangers when we can't hold up our end of things. How will we eat when we get there?"

"The Lord takes care of His own," observed the old man piously. "When do you reckon we'll put in at Josie's place, Tally?"

MR. MARION

Mr. Marion May 1 The Mt. Marion P. J. will hold its May meeting in the schoolhouse on Tuesday, May 9. Dr. Ruth Anderson will speak and lead a discussion on Democracy in the Home. Members of any neighboring unit are cordially invited to attend.

The Eastern District Federation of the Home Bureaus will have luncheon at the church hall of the Platteville Reformed Church in Mt. Marion Thursday, May 11. Edmund Bower, county H. I. agent, will show motion pictures in the church hall on Monday evening, May 15. The community is invited to attend.

"Coulda been a lawyer," "I like farming," Tally started toward the house, his jaw set stubbornly.

'Buried Alive'

GRETCHEN met him in the hallway, her pretty face flushed with excitement. "Tally, did you see Betsy anywhere? We're all ready to go. Mama wants you to take the lunch basket out to the car. She's packed enough food for two days."

"Mostly cookies, I'll bet. Gla- to be going, Six?"

She nodded. "I'd be glad to go anywhere I guess. I feel as if I've been buried alive here for three years... ever since Andy..."

He put his arm about her slender shoulders. "I know it's tough to be a widow at nineteen with a baby to look after. You've been swell. Sis. Maybe you will be happier out in California."

"I ought to find a job and take some of the load from you, Tally. It isn't right for you to have all of us."

"I want all of you. Ever think of that? Better find Betty so we can start."

Going on to the kitchen he found his mother fastening down the lid of a large wicker hamper.

"Ready, Mom?"

She handed him the hamper, then smoothed voluminous folds of cotton print over her stout, heavy-bosomed body. Lifting her arms, she brushed at strands of soft gray hair which clung to her round cheeks. "I must look a sight!" she scolded.

"You look beautiful, Mom." Bending down he kissed the tip of her shining nose. "You're going to ride in front with me and Betsy on, ride in back with Grampa and Sis."

"And Tex," she added. "You don't want to go, do you, Son?"

His face, as he smiled reassuringly, into her concerned eyes, became tender and gentle. "I'm rarin' to go, Mom. I'll be glad to get the Texas dust out of my throat. But I wonder—" he paused, his smile disappearing—"how the Russell family is going to like our coming."

"I wonder, too," his mother agreed. "Oughtn't we let them know we're starting out?"

"They'll know soon enough," Mrs. Mack sighed. "I know you wouldn't be going Tally, if we could, scrape a living from this place."

His face hardened. "But we can't scrape a living from here, Mom. We have a long way to go."

nese checker party in the church hall on Friday evening, April 28, with about 50 in attendance. The committee on foods was dressed in Chinese costumes, as was the hostess. The store was decorated with limbs of apple blossoms, Chinese umbrellas and lanterns.

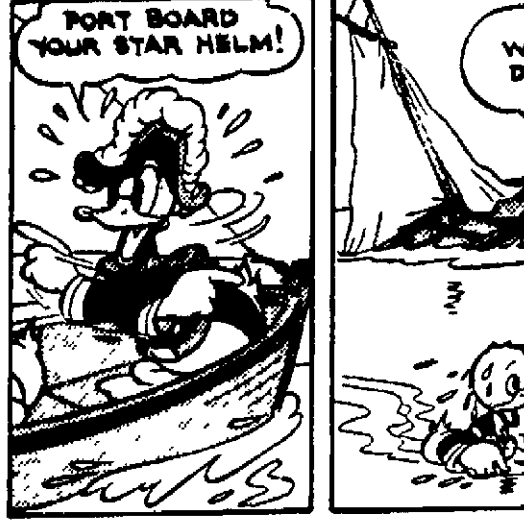

A Sunday school tea meeting, with high school picnic, was held for the Sunday school picnic and for children's day were made.

The Sunday school attendance contest is still under way and to date the Reds are ahead of the Blues.

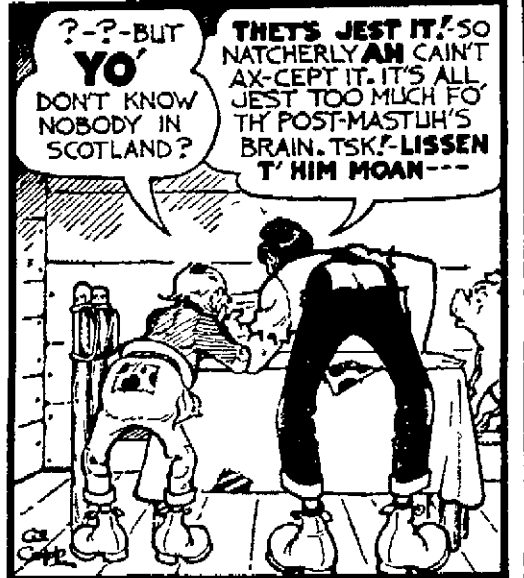

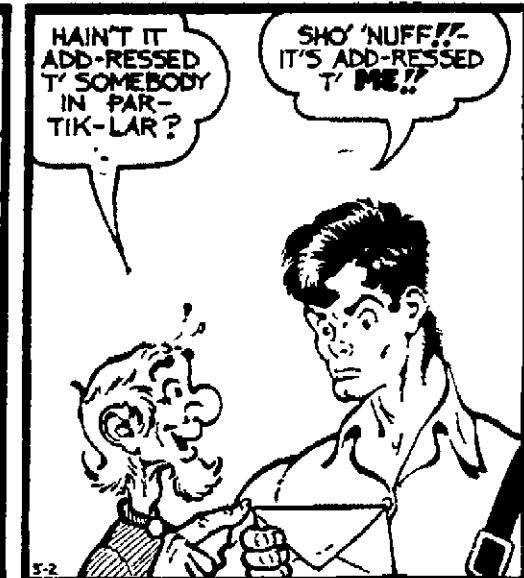

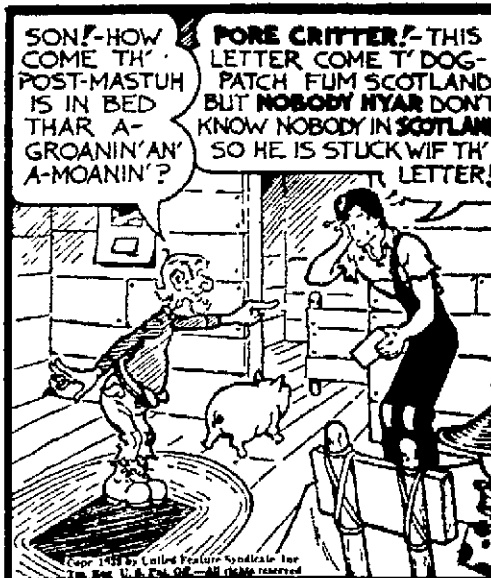

Dr. Clayton J. Potter, of Mt. Marion and the Rev. Stephen Rydman of Flatbush exchanged pulpits Sunday.

HEM AND AMY

IT WORKED ONCE!

By Frank H. Beck

Mrs. Askett (on telephone)—I sent my little boy for two pounds of bananas, and you sent only one pound and a half.

Grocer—My scales are all right, Mrs. Askett. Have you weighed your little boy since he got back?

Salesman—Boy-o boy did Tilly throw a party last night!

Girl—You don't say! Who all was there?

Salesman—Just me and Tilly.

A little girl was carrying home some eggs, and dropped them.

"Did you break any?" asked her mother.

"No," said the child, "but the shells came off some of them."

Little John—Dad, why do people get married?

Dad—To raise children, sonny.

John—Aw, shucks, they could get all of those they wanted at the orphan asylum.

Guest—Waiter, the service is terrible. You gave that fat man at the table next to mine a steak twice as big as the one you brought me. Where's the manager?

Waiter—That fat guy's the manager.

A youth seated himself in a dentist's chair. He wore a wonderful shirt of striped silk and an even more wonderful checked suit. He had the vacant stare that goes with both.

"I'm afraid to give him gas," the dentist said to his assistant.

"Why," said the assistant.

"Well," said the dentist, "how will I know when he is unconscious?"

Little Girl—Mother, where do they keep the cross-eyed bean in Sunday School?

Mother—What cross-eyed bean, dear?

Little Girl—Oh, the Holy Cross. I'd bet 't they sing about him all the time.

Man—You're an honest boy, but the money I lost was a ten-dollar note.

Boy—Yes, I know. I had it changed so you could give me a reward.

John—What's the matter, old man? You look tired out.

Bill—It's my wife. She used to wake me up every time she heard a noise in the house thinking maybe a burglar had made it.

John—But burglars don't make any noise.

Bill—That's what I told her, so now she wakes me up when she doesn't hear anything.

Most people prefer to do their own worrying. It is both wiser and more tactful therefore not to worry about them unless you are immediately concerned.

Two Assistance Calls To Local Department

Two calls for assistance were received over the mutual aid wire in headquarters at the Central Fire Station yesterday. The first was at 9 o'clock for fire in a barn on the Christian Brothers property at West Park. The fire department at Highland was assigned to the job.

A fire in the barn and house on the Wengarten property on Lucas avenue, turnpike near the Fourth Binnewater. Unable to get in touch with the Binnewater fire department, Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy assigned Excelsior Hose Company to the scene of the fire.

The Weather

TUESDAY, MAY 2, 1939

Sun rises, 4:49 a. m. E.S.T.; sun sets, 7:06 p. m., E.S.T. Weather, clear.

The Temperature

The lowest point recorded by The Freeman thermometer during the night was 36 degrees. The highest point reached up until noon today was 57 degrees.

Weather Forecast

New York City and vicinity—Partly cloudy, continued cool to night and Wednesday. Moderate northerly winds. Lowest temperature tonight about 42. Light frost locally in outlying low places.

Eastern New York: Fair and continued cool with light frost in exposed places tonight. Wednesday fair with slowly rising temperatures in north portion.

Little-Known Mammals Roam High in Rockies

High up in the Rockies and allied ranges, where winter is long and the short summer is a season of wondrous loveliness, live some of America's least-known smaller mammals. They are little known because they live in a land of seven or eight months of winter and are buried from sight most of this time, writes Hamilton M. Laing in "Nature Magazine."

In the mountain parks the visitor is sure to get acquainted with the larger mammals: bear, deer, sheep, goat—the obvious; he is likely to see much less of the smaller, humbler folk: whistling marmot, pika, Columbian and golden-mantled ground squirrels, and chipmunk. These inhabitants of the rocky slopes and meadows at the feet of the high crags are the kings of the skyline, and such little creatures tell a chapter of natural history quite as interesting as any chapter from the lives of big game.

Where the disintegrating cliffs break off abruptly and, yielding to the wear of time, drop their fragments upon the slowly accumulating talus, there are built the castles that are home to these little kings of the high places. Usually the debris fills a draw or head of a ravine, where on either side, with the passing of the snows in mid-summer, the lush alpine vegetation springs to life to paint the slopes. Most of the small mammal residents here are vegetarians, and they have the two main necessities that go to make life for them worth living: food and shelter. The vegetation here during its short life at from four to seven thousand feet is luscious and abundant; the shelter is ample and substantial—the rocks in a slide usually running the gamut of size from a bun to a box-car.

NICARAGUAN PRESIDENT VISITS U. S.

Attention again focused on the proposed construction of a Nicaragua canal with the arrival in New Orleans of genial President Anastasio Somoza (left) of Nicaragua. Here he and his wife are being greeted by Gov. Richard W. Leche of Louisiana. Somoza said the canal would be one of "many things" he would discuss with President Roosevelt during his month in the United States.

Local Army Group Attends Conclave

Over the week-end delegates from the young peoples branch of The Salvation Army of Kingston, united with delegations from 13 other corps of the Hudson River division, in Youth Councils at Mount Vernon.

These councils were conducted by Commissioner A. Damon, eastern territorial commander, assisted by his staff. The theme was "The Spirit of Love" which is also the name of the World-wide campaign being conducted by The Salvation Army.

At noon Saturday, the entire group, headed by the American Legion and the Nautical cadets, with their leader, Lieut. Rollins, paraded through the main thoroughfares of the city and were greeted at the city hall by Mayor Denton Pearsall, Jr., who extended a welcome to all the visitors. The Saturday councils were held

George Wolfe Will Speak At Temple Emanuel

The Kingston Jewish Community Council will hold its monthly meeting at Temple Emanuel on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock sharp. A regular short business session will be held.

The council has been fortunate in securing as the guest speaker of the evening George Wolfe, who will talk on the subject of "Community Councils." Mr. Wolfe is well qualified to make such presentation having received his training in social work at the Graduate School for Jewish Social Work from which he graduated in 1928. From 1928 to 1934 he was a member of the school's faculty. Since 1934 he has been on the staff of the Council of Jewish Federations and has held that position up to the present time. His talk will trace the origin and development of Jewish Community Councils in America.

Rummage Sale

The Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel will hold a rummage sale within the next week at the Greenwald building, corner of Broadway and Abel street. Those having articles to donate should phone Mrs. Harris Brown, 1964, and they will be called for.

Valley Inn

Stephen Balogh and Stephen Balogh, Jr., of Rosendale have certified to the county clerk that they are doing business in town of Rosendale under the style of Valley Inn.

"Y" Drive Closes With $10,068.86 In Pledges Made

The annual Y. M. C. A. financial drive closed with $10,068.86 subscribed when the final reports of the campaign workers were received at the dinner meeting held Monday evening in the new gym at the "Y."

While the campaign failed by $2,051.14 in reaching the goal of $12,100, General Secretary Robert L. Sisson, manager of the campaign, stated that he was pleased with the results obtained, while President Clarence Dumm, of the "Y" board thanked all who had helped to make the drive a success. Included in the $12,100 budget was the sum of $1,000 that was to be used in making necessary repairs to the swimming pool in the association.

The contest between the "Y" in Amsterdam and the local association which has been staged for the past few years was won this year by the upstate association as it closed its campaign with 93 per cent of its budget raised, while here 82 per cent was raised. The loving cup which the local "Y" won last year now goes to Amsterdam. "But we will regain it next year" Secretary Sisson assured the campaign workers.

When the final reports from the campaign workers were received it was shown that 1,953 subscribers had subscribed the amount reported raised.

President Dumm presided at the dinner meeting last evening which was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley of the Fair Street Reformed Church. The ladies of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, St. James M. E. Church and the Congregational Church served the dinner.

P. H. Carey with Danny Bittner at the piano led the workers in community singing before the reports were made, and brief addresses were made by Superintendent of Schools E. C. Van Ingen and Attorney Roger H. Loughran, who praised the work of character building being carried on among the youth of Kingston by the "Y."

Winter Concert Programs Given

Taking note of the unanimously expressed delight of its members over the concert given last season by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, Rodzinski conducting, the committee in charge for the four concerts of the series given by the Cooperative Concert Association each year, has secured the National Orchestra for next season with Hans Kindler conducting. A Metropolitan Opera star and other exceptionally attractive programs will complete the 1939-40 series which is scheduled as follows:

Anna Kaskas, Metropolitan Opera contralto soloist, whose rich voice and fascinating personality has made her such a great favorite, will appear Wednesday, November 8, at the high school auditorium.

The National Symphony Orchestra, now so famous, with Kindler conducting, will be the second concert on Sunday afternoon, December 17, at the municipal auditorium.

On Tuesday evening, March 5, 1940, the exceedingly popular young baritone soloist, Lansing Hatfield, will be the artist at the high school auditorium. Mr. Hatfield, who is being loudly acclaimed by the accredited critics will be one of the soloists at the World's Fair.

The series of concerts will be brought to a close by Bartlett and Robertson, two-piano artists so widely known, each as an artist in his own right. This concert will be given at the high school auditorium, Monday, April 15.

Rommel-Schiller

Miss Gertrude Schiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schiller of Tilton, and Ernest Rommel, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rommel of Bridgeport, Conn., were united in marriage Sunday, April 30, at the Little Church Around the Corner, in New York city. They were attended by Miss Marie Kubicek of this city, and Peter Calceira of Bridgeport, Conn.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore an ensemble of navy blue with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias and sweet peas. The bridesmaid was also in navy with matching accessories and wore a corsage of sweet peas.

Following the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to the Hotel New Yorker where a wedding dinner was served. Following a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Providence, R. I.

Dorman Addresses Savings Delegates

(Continued from Page One) did not approve of savings accounts in national banks. The savings and loan associations were found to be doing a good work in helping people to buy homes—something that most persons do but once in a lifetime. It was stated that people are still thrifty, as was shown by the number of shares held in savings and loan associations and deposits in savings banks in 1938.

Canline Presides
President Canline presided at the dinner last night and presented as the first speaker Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who cordially welcomed the visitors to Kingston. He told the Loan Association members that from his experience as a banker he was familiar with the work they were doing in Kingston, through which many citizens here were being helped to own their own homes. He said that he knew what they were up against these days and that he was trying to help by "keeping axes down and giving the people good government." He said that axes were very reasonable and lower than they were six or seven years ago.

The mayor told the visitors that if they got in trouble from passing red lights, he couldn't interfere as that was something he never had done, but that he could visit them in their cell and play Chinese checkers with them and if any of the ladies were involved he would visit them and read Anthony Adverse.

President Canline moved a vote of thanks to the members of the Kingston Savings and Loan Associations and to their presidents, E. Frank Flanagan and Fred J. Walter, for the fine arrangements they had made for entertainment of the convention. He introduced the new officers of the Southeastern League—Reginald H. Davies of Beacon, president; H. Harrison Farnum of Port Jervis, vice president; Samuel Sheldon of Pearl River, secretary-treasurer.

Governor Lehman Signs Conway Bill

Charter Night For Troop Three

Troop No. 3, sponsored by St. Joseph's Church held their parents' night meeting Sunday, at the school hall. Thirty Scouts and their parents and friends attended. Albert N. Cook, chairman of the troop committee presided. He first introduced R. Gardner Burns, Scout executive, who presented the charter for Troop No. 3 to the Rev. John P. McCaffrey, as the head of the sponsoring institution.

Dr. H. W. Keator, president of the Ulster-Greene Council, gave a short talk on scouting and the need for it in the present times. Mr. Cook then introduced the members of the Troop Committee who presented awards to the scouts which they had won during the year. John Egan, Harry Howard, Barent Cater, Albert N. Cook, John N. Cordis, Walter Miller and Stanley Dempsey are members of the Troop Committee. Mr. Burns presented each Scout with his new registration card. The Scouts gave three demonstrations of scouting for the benefit of the parents.

Medals were awarded to Scouts J. Tancredi, E. Carson, J. Howard, E. Gerlach and D. Kromper for having an attendance record of 90 per cent or better at troop meetings for the past two years. The following received medals for 90 per cent attendance the past year: B. Quilty, S. Dempsey, J. Stanton, N. Hircell, R. Cordeau, R. Crosby, B. Cater.

New York, May 2 (UP)—Stocks rallied 1 to 3 points in today's market, but light profit taking chipped down top prices in late dealings.

Volume was well above yesterday's session, second slowest in nearly 5 years, but real activity was lacking throughout. Near the final hour the ticker tape frequently was at a standstill. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 500,000 shares.

Bonds and commodities generally pointed upward. Prominent on the recovery side of the stock list were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Great Northern, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott and DuPont.

Inclined to edge forward in the Curb were Electric Bond & Share, Lockheed, American Airlines, Standard Cap & Seal and Standard Steel Spring.

Katz Case Heard In Supreme Court

An action arising out of an explosion and fire in the Sophia W. Katz home on Broadway came to trial this morning in supreme court before Justice Foster and a jury. The action is brought by Sophia W. Katz and The Home Insurance Company and others against Conrad Robinson and another who were doing business under the name of Ulster Fuel Oil Co.

Thomas J. Plunket is attorney of record for plaintiff and Cashin & Ewig appear for the defendants. Roscoe V. Elsworth also appears for one of the plaintiffs.

The action arises over an alleged fire and explosion which took place in the house while work was being done about the oil burner by a man connected with the defendants.

The selection of a jury was undertaken at the opening of court and the case progressed during the morning.

Walter, Cragin Decline Positions

It is understood that Fred J. Walter, vice president of the Board of Education, and Dr. Arthur M. Cragin, whose terms as members of the board expire, have declined reappointment. It is expected that Mayor C. J. Heiselman will announce soon the names of those he expects to appoint to fill the two vacancies on the board.

Mr. Walter has been a member of the education board for the past ten years, and both he and Dr. Cragin are declining reappointment owing to pressure of business. Both men have given much time to the work of the board, especially during the construction of the Myron J. Michael School and the new vocational school.

'New' Styles Very Few, Says Clothing Expert

There are few really new fashions even though they vary with each new season. If present-day styles are examined one will see ideas which were leaders in the fashion world of years ago, according to Vivian Minyard, clothing specialist.

"Redingotes" are popular styles at present. The slip of the redingote is usually of print material and the sheer coat to be worn with it of a plain material. In 1800 this was also a leading fashion. More elaborate materials and more yardage were used then but the idea is the same.

Sleeves with fullness at the top are popular present-day styles in all types of dresses. The idea for these may have come from the "Leg-O-Mutton" sleeves of 1825. These sleeves were much more elaborate, so again the present-day tendency is toward the more conservative fashions.

"Basques" today are not so different from those worn in 1850. Today's version has less fullness in the skirt.

The "Gibson Girl" of 1900 has been repeated in 1938 fashions. These styles in 1900 featured small waists, full skirts, etc., and were picturesque styles. Today they are comfortable and smart looking with the fitted waist line, fullness in the blouse, and flares or pleats in the skirt.

Ideas in fashion have been handed to us from ancient people. For instance, the ancient Egyptians had the custom of wearing bands around the head to keep the hair in place. We retain the fashion but place the band inside the hat. Streamers and broad brims for children's hats probably came from a Greek custom. To protect the head from the sun, these people wore that type of hat.

Many things have direct influence on fashion. People in the headlines are responsible for particular styles. War, economic conditions, activities, world events, etc., all suggest possibilities to the designers.—Vivian Minyard, Extension Specialist.

Factory of Roman Era Unearthed in England

An industrial establishment with a number of furnaces and part of a blacksmith's forge has been disclosed on the Roman site at Collyton Park, Dorchester, says the Times, of London.

"On the western part of the area one of the large buildings has been uncovered, and from the number of furnaces it contains appears to have been some kind of industrial establishment. So far, however, it has not been possible to determine what was manufactured. One curious feature is a large shallow pit cut down into the chalk which was found to be filled with ashes and a mass of small shingle.

"To the north of this building part of a blacksmith's forge has been disclosed with a neatly built hearth of limestone blocks. Two short lines of animal bones project outward from it on either side. These bones, carefully embedded upright on the chalk floor, would appear to have no practical use, and it may be supposed they had some superstitious significance.

"Iron fragments were found in the ashes of the forge, and also a number of Third century coins and gaming counters.

"A cutting into the bank behind the Roman town wall has revealed the manner in which this work was strengthened with a rubble core and a revetment wall at the foot.

"On the eastern part of the site trial trenches have remained of a Roman street running north and south. This is lightly metalled and must have been one of the minor streets running between some of the insulae, or blocks of buildings.

Five Teams Comprise City Baseball League for 1939 Season

Two Clubs Given Time to Post Fees, Schedule Opens 9th

Bill Murphy and Dick Dulin Chosen Umpires; "Meb" Lynch Will Be Groundkeeper

Jones Dairy, Ciosi A. C., Grunewalds, Kingston Independents and Boiceville Rangers will comprise a five team first half City League twilight circuit. With the Knights of Columbus definitely abandoning plans for a first half entry, the athletic field loop will get under way on a four-game per week basis next Tuesday, May 9. Last night's business session in the city hall with Treasurer Ed Banks rapping the gavel in the absence of President Joe Kelly saw final plans for the initial half completed.

Dulin, Murphy Umpires
Dick Dulin and William "Pie" Murphy were installed as umpires for the first half campaign with Bill Scully as alternate. Melvin "Meb" Lynch was selected by the managers as groundkeeper for first half duty with Patsy DeCicco named as alternate for the caretaker's duties. Dulin and Murphy are holdovers from last season's diamond battles while Lynch was first half caretaker last season.

The board of managers approved the amendment regarding the transfer of players from one team to another at the close of the first half, providing said player obtained consent of manager on whose roster he signed for the first half.

Ed Banks, veteran treasurer, took over the reins and conducted last night's important business session. Entry fees for the twilight circuit were forwarded by Grunewalds, Jones Dairy and the Kingston Independents with extension granted the Boiceville Rangers and Ciosi A. C.

Lineups Submitted
The first half playing rosters were submitted to Secretary Geoghan with only one conflict occurring. Ciosi A. C. waived on Jimmy Turk and the Kingston Independents claimed him for first half duty.

The board of managers, last year's championship Kyanite outfit, list a powerful combination for two-loop duty. Jack Schatzel, former Jones Dairy first sacker, and Bud Swarthout, Ciosi south-paw along with Red McLean, fancy fielding Hedricks shortstop, give the business boys added strength.

Jones Dairy's hurling staff was bolstered by the addition of Charley Nell, fireball flinger, and Joe Brown, ace Casey smoke-ball singer with Julius Chick, Paul Misove and George Celuch also on hand. Speed Scherer and Jimmy Ashdown are other newcomers to the butter and egg boys' roster.

Ciosi's Stand Pat
Gus Steigerwald's surprising Ciosi A. C. unit is standing pat on last year's second half, surprises and the grocery boys will feature old standbys when they prance on the field this season. Johnny Weiss' Grunewalds have added Gil Kelder, Red Sleight, Bill Hanley, Jack Strubel, Al Hasbrouck, Myron Herrick, Art Peper and Earl Newell in a wholesale house cleaning of the '38 unit.

Lou Knapp's Boiceville Rangers, making their debut in City League competition this season, feature Orville Sweet, Saugerties tosser and Buddy Zoller, curvball flipper as well as Ray Schneider, former Kingston High School center fielder and Bob Naussbaum of Phoenix's strong nine.

The rosters of the City League entrants as forwarded to Secretary Jim Geoghan are:

Kingston Independents
Gene Rider, Joe Messinger, Bob Bush, Bud Swarthout, Bing Van Ethen, Jack Schatzel, Charley Beck, Red McLean, Ad Stumph, Jim Turk, Tommy Maines, Andy Dykes, Pres. Knight, Charley Lay and Jack Dawkins.

Jones Dairy
George Celuch, Julius Chick, Charley Nell, Joe Brown, Paul Misove, George Zadany, A. Berardi, Chappie Van Derzee, Andy Celuch, Ralph DeCicco, Johnny Berardi, Jim Ashdown, Elmer Hopper, T. Berardi and Speed Scherer.

Grunewalds
Joe Dulin, Tommy Lamb, Bob Purvis, Ed Minasian, Vince Smendes, Gil Kelder, Red Sleight, Joe Mahar, Bill Hanley, Jack

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

If you'll take a quick look at the National League standings today, you'll find them headed by the Boston Bees. You are urged to look quickly merely because, this early in the race, one or two games can have such a far-reaching effect on the lineup. No disrespect is intended either for the Bees or their ability to survive in this rarefied atmosphere.

There's little percentage in being disrespectful toward the Bees at their present rate of locomotion. Bill Terry's New York Giants—wasn't that "the strongest club I've ever had"—tried it, and where did it get them? Right into the doghouse—or, to be specific, from sixth place into seventh, just one game out of the cellar.

In any event, as National League's western teams come east and the American's eastern clubs go west for the first time today, there are the Bees, a full game up on the Reds and a game and a half in front of the Cubs.

The Best Pitching
From four right-handers, three of them 32 years old and the other a mere boy of 29, Casey Stengel has coaxed the Loop's best pitching. From an infield that has a 1938 outfielder at third base and a rookie up from Kansas City at shortstop, he has got all-right fielding and 16 double plays in 11 games. From an outfield that features Al Simmons, 35-year-old fugitive from the American League, and Johnny Cooney, a 37-year-old ball hawk, he has drawn just enough speed and batting punch to produce four straight victories on an average turnout of nine hits per game.

They did it again yesterday, with Bill Posedel making his first start at winning one and Tony Cuccinello coming up with a three-run homer that clinched the 7-2 defeat of the Giants. Posedel retired 18 men in order, had a no-hitter until two were out in the seventh, and wasn't scored on until the ninth, when the Terry-men broke through with three singles surrounding a Boston error.

Terry Fuzzed

This performance by Posedel and the Bees, which left Terry even more bewildered as to how to check his club's amazing nose-dive, stood out on a foreshortened but important big league program. In the other two games the Pirates snapped their eight-game losing streak with a 2-1 triumph over the Reds, and the Dodgers tied for fourth place by edging out the Phillies, 13-12, in a typical Ebbets Field scramble.

Rip Sewell was the lad who pulled Pittsburgh up by its bootstraps. In gaining his first big-league victory, he set the Rhinelanders down with six hits while Johnny Rizzo's two time doubles were driving in the winning runs.

American Washout

Rain washed out the Indians-Tigers duel, only one scheduled for the American League. The junior circuit claimed an extra-curricular triumph, though, as the White Sox blasted Dizzy Dean's "nothing ball" for seven hits and all their runs in four innings to beat the Cubs, 4-1, in a benefit game that raised close to $30,000 for Monty Stratton.

Diz Unimpressive In Benefit Game

Chicago, May 2 (AP)—The famed $185,000 right arm of Jerome "Dizzy" Dean is apparently no better than it was when he threw himself out against the New York Yankees in the world series last October.

That was the impression prevailing today after Dean's first pitching assignment of the year. He faced the Chicago White Sox yesterday in a benefit game that netted between $25,000 and $30,000 for Monty Stratton, one-time Sox pitching ace who lost a leg in a hunting accident. Until yesterday Dean had pitched only two innings since the Yankees crushed him and his performance was anything but impressive.

The Sox whacked him for seven hits in four innings to win 4-1 and unanimously asserted he didn't have a thing.

Dean may be lost to the Cubs until at least mid-summer. The colorful pitcher, after working four innings, admitted that his arm was sore; that it was weak and tired.

"There's no use kidding myself," Dean moaned. "It really hurts. It's sore as the deuce up here," pointing to a muscle over his shoulder. But he hastened to add, "It isn't sore where it was last year, under the shoulder blade. I'll just have to take things easy I guess, I think it is just weakness. It looks like I'll have to strengthen my arm, that's all."

New Game for U. S.
Jai-Alai (pronounced hi-lai), the national game of Spain, has found favor with American audiences. Few Americans participate, however, because years of training are necessary. "The game is played with long, curved rackets, woven from straw, called cestas, which are used to throw a hard ball, called the pelota, against a solid wall, much like the American game of handball is played. There are only two frontons (stadiums) in the United States, one in New York city and the other at Miami, Fla. In Spain many of the churches are built with one side flat so it can be used by jai-alai players."

St. Mary's Drill At Block Park

St. Mary's Church softball team, which will play in the Catholic League, is scheduled to practice tonight at 6 o'clock previous to the meeting in the school. The workout will be held at Block Park. On the roster of the club to date are Jimmy Albany and Babe Larkin for the battery; Sonny Woods, Hank Krum, Jack Kelly, Jim Hawkins, Andy Murphy and others.

40 Midget Auto Drivers In Woodstock Race May 14

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons wouldn't say, in advance of the Kentucky Derby, that he believed Johnstown (above) was another Man o' War. But he did declare that Johnstown was "a nice colt," had done "everything asked of him," and might turn out to "be a great one." That conservative opinion was expressed just after Johnstown galloped away with the Wood Memorial at Jamaica. Here Sunny Jim leads Johnstown out for a workout at his aqueduct home quarters, from which the colt was shipped to Kentucky.

Y. M. C. A. Bowlers Victorious In Roll-Off With Merchants

Things went well for the Downtown Merchants last night in their roll off for the City Bowling League championship with the Y. M. C. A. until they hit the third and last game and then they slipped.

At the end of the second game, the Merchants were ahead by 100 pins. Then in the third, the "Y" keggers put on the pressure and outscored their rivals for the penultimate by 932-816. The winning margin for the "Y" team was 16 pins.

R. Whitaker with 265 saved some of the honors for the Merchants, by posting the high single of the match. Randy Kelder of the "Y" spilled the pins for a 617 triple and 205 average.

NICARAGUAN PRESIDENT VISITS U. S.

Attention again focused on the proposed construction of a Nicaraguan canal as an auxiliary to the Panama canal with the arrival in New Orleans of genial President Anastasio Somoza (left) of Nicaragua. Here he and his wife are being greeted by Gov. Richard W. Leche of Louisiana. Somoza said the canal would be one of "many things" he would discuss with President Roosevelt during his month in the United States.

Little-Known Mammals Roam High in Rockies

High up in the Rockies and allied ranges, where winter is long and the short summer is a season of wondrous loveliness, live some of America's least-known smaller mammals. They are little known because they live in a land of seven or eight months of winter and are buried from sight most of this time, writes Hamilton M. Laing in "Nature Magazine."

In the mountain parks the visitor is sure to get acquainted with the larger mammals: bear, deer, sheep, goat—the obvious; he is likely to see much less of the smaller, humbler folk: whistling marmot, pika, Columbian and golden-mantled ground squirrels, and chipmunk. These inhabitants of the rockslides and meadows at the feet of the high crags are the kings of the skyline, and such little creatures tell a chapter of natural history quite as interesting as any chapter from the lives of big game.

Where the disintegrating cliffs break off abruptly and, yielding to the wear of time, drop their fragments upon the slowly accumulating talus, there are built the castles that are home to these little kings of the high places. Usually the debris fills a draw or head of a ravine, where on either side, with the passing of the snows in mid-summer, the lush alpine vegetation springs to life to paint the slopes. Most of the small mammal residents here are vegetarians, and they have the two main necessities that go to make life for them worth living: food and shelter. The vegetation here during its short life at from four to seven thousand feet is luscious and abundant; the shelter is ample and substantial—the rocks in a slide usually running the gamut of size from a bun to a box-car.

"Y" Drive Closes With $10,068.86 In Pledges Made

The annual Y. M. C. A. financial drive closed with $10,068.86 subscribed when the final reports of the campaign workers were received at the dinner meeting held Monday evening in the new gym at the "Y."

While the campaign failed by $2,051.14 in reaching the goal of $12,100, General Secretary Robert L. Sisson, manager of the campaign, stated that he was pleased with the results obtained, while President Clarence Dumm, of the "Y" board thanked all who had helped to make the drive a success. Included in the $12,100 budget was the sum of $1,000 that was to be used in making necessary repairs to the swimming pool in the association.

The contest between the "Y" in Amsterdam and the local association which has been staged for the past few years was won this year by the upstate association as it closed its campaign with 93 per cent of its budget raised, while here 82 per cent was raised. The loving cup which the local "Y" won last year now goes to Amsterdam.

"But we will regain it next year," Secretary Sisson assured the campaign workers. When the final reports from the campaign workers were received it was shown that 1,053 subscribers had subscribed the amount reported raised.

President Dumm presided at the dinner meeting last evening which was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley of the Fair Street Reformed Church. The ladies of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, St. James M. E. Church and the Congregational Church served the dinner. P. H. Carey with Danny Bittner at the piano led the workers in community singing before the reports were made, and brief addresses were made by Superintendent of Schools B. C. Van Ingen and Attorney Roger H. Loughran, who praised the work of church
